Panelists Agree—If You Puff Longer, Die Younger

WASHINGTON (AP)—Smoking cigarettes is a health hazard that calls for corrective action—and is a major cause of lung cancer and other death-dealing disease, especially in men, a blue-ribbon federal panel reported today.

In short, the panel indicated, the more you smoke, the greater your risk of an early death.

The panel also decided that there was "simply no evidence that filters on cigarettes have had an effect in reducing the health hazard from smoking."

The 10-man scientific panel—spending 14 months in its study of available evidence — also found:

1. Cigarette smoking far outweighs all other causes of lung cancer in men — and the data for women point in the same direction.

2. While male cigarette smokers have a higher death rate from heart and blood vessel disease than non-smoking males, it is not clear as yet that smoking is the cause.

3. Cigarette smoking is a significant cause of lung cancer in the larynx or voice box in men.

4. The risk of lung cancer increases the longer you smoke and the more cigarettes you smoke in a day. It lessens if you quit smoking.

5. Cigarette smoking is the most important cause of chronic bronchitis—the coughing irritation of the bronchial tubes—and increases the risk of death from that disease.

6. Cigarette smoking is related to emphysema, a hardening and growing inefficiency of the lungs. But it cannot as yet be called a cause. However, cigarette smoking is associated with a greater risk of dying of emphysema.

7. For most of the people in the United States cigarette smoking is a much greater cause of chronic disease of the lungs and bronchial airways than is pollution of the atmosphere.

While it found all this and more, the committee also said that the significant benefits of smoking are primarily in the area of mental health—"and the habit originates in a search for contentment."

Surgeon General Luther Terry, chief of the U.S. Public Health Service, said in receiving the report:

"Out of its long and exhaustive deliberations the committee has reached the over-all judgment that cigarette smoking is a health hazard of sufficient importance in the United States to warrant remedial action."

While the Public Health Service is not taking the report as its official stand, he said, the report is already under study and the Health Service will move promptly to decide what remedial measures it should take.

UNINJURED—Capt. Donald. W Dwinell, radar operator, and Capt. Andrew H. Thomas, pilot, are checked out at Hamilton Air Force Base after landing their damaged jet there yesterday. Dr. Leslie M. Hale exams them. The two men in the other jet suffered injuries when they bailed out of their crippled jet.

Jet Fliers Survive Collision In Air, Land At Hamilton

Two Air Force jet interceptors collided in mid-air north of San Francisco Bay at 2:15 p.m. yesterday, one crashing into rugged hill country in Alameda County and the other landing safely at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The four Air Force officers aboard the two F-101B Voodoo jets escaped alive, but two were injured parachuting from their crippled plane.

Air Force investigators today started looking for clues as to why the fighter-interceptors collided. The planes from the 437th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at the Oxnard Air Force Base, Ventura County, were on a routine training mission when they collided over Crows Canyon for unknown reasons.

One plane veered off and crashed into a ridge four miles southwest of Alamo in Alameda County after its crew parachuted.

The other, heavily damaged and leaking fuel landed wildly at Hamilton AFB, ran the length of the runway and was stopped by a cable barrier at the end. It had a huge gash on the after end of the fuselage, a damaged right wing and half of the external fuel tank sheared off.

Capt. Andrew H. Thomas, 25, of Camarillo, Ventura County pilot, and Capt. Donald W. Dwinell, 30, of Oxnard, radar observer, were uninjured.

Pilot of the downed plane, First Lt. Virgil O. McCollum III, 24, and his radar observer, Capt. Herman W. Jarrett, 31, both of Camarillo, landed at a ranch three miles north of Castro Valley.

McCollum, who suffered a knee injury, was picked up by Alameda County sheriff's deputies after a rancher's son sighted the two men parachuting from their plane.

Jarrett, who suffered possible back injuries, was picked up by a Coast Guard helicopter, taken to Alameda Naval Air Station and then transferred to Oak Knoll Naval Hospital.

The planes, heading back to Oxnard AFB from Hamilton AFB, reportedly were executing high-speed maneuvers when they collided. The F-101B jets are capable of going 1,210 MPH.

New Anti-U.S. Outbreaks In Panama City

BULLETIN

PANAMA CITY (AP)—U.S. troops used tear gas at Colon today to force back a Panamanian mob throwing stones across the border into Canal Zone.

The demonstrators, numbering about 300, retired two or three blocks from the boundary.

The disorders lasted nearly four hours.

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — New anti-American outbreaks in Colon, Panama's second largest city, were reported today as Organization of American States (OAS) peace-makers met with President Roberto F. Chiari to try to halt the bloodshed and carnage of the past two days.

The reports were unconfirmed. They circulated in the presidential palace as the OAS group met with Chiari and his subordinates in a 90-minute preliminary meeting. Also present at the conference was a six-man student delegation bearing the tattered fragments of a Panamanian flag which they said was the one torn down by American students in the Canal Zone Thursday. It was this act which touched off the violence.

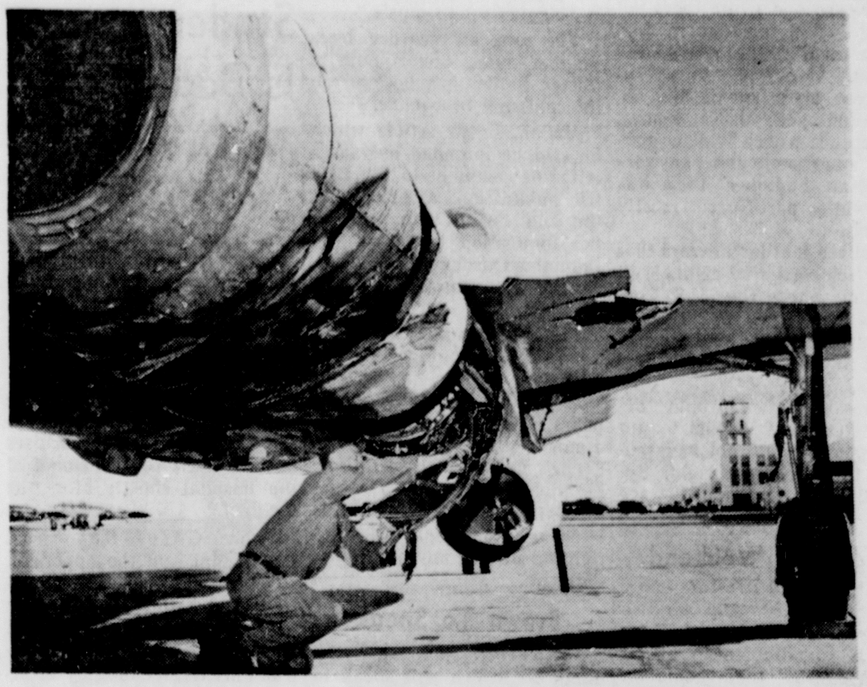

Colon is on the Atlantic side of the canal.

There were also unconfirmed reports Americans were being evacuated from the Chiriqui Land Co. holdings (a subsidiary of United Fruit Co.) over the border into Costa Rica for safety.

Panama City appeared to be in the grip of a general strike or protest movement. All businesses were closed down. The atmosphere was tense although mob belligerence seemed to have subsided somewhat.

Large groups of Panamanians milled aimlessly about the streets. American newsmen were surrounded by angry Panamanians at every halt they

90 Pickets March For Fair Housing

About 90 pickets marched today at the Corte Madera office of Marin County Real Estate Board president Joe H. Stewart in protest of the board's refusal to oppose the anti-Rumford Act initiative.

Among the pickets was actor-writer Sterling Hayden of Belvedere. The demonstration was sponsored by the Marin Congress of Racial Equality in protest of what CORE Chairman Douglas Quiett called the real estate board's "failure to take a stand against the initiative."

The California Real Estate Assn., sponsors of the initiative, met today in San Diego to consider the initiative, recently opposed by some association members.

Pickets later marched at the offices of other Marin board directors in San Rafael and San Anselmo.

60 Killed In India Clash

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Troops were summoned to maintain order in Calcutta area today following violent clashes between Moslems and Hindus which claimed 60 lives.

In the latest flareup three policemen were killed by Hindus who overpowered them as they were guarding Moslems at Gaighata, a village 40 miles from Calcutta near the West Pakistan border.

P. C. Sen, head of the West Bengal state government, released the casualty figures. Police fired into the rioting mobs in an effort to dispel them.

CORE, Realty Office Settle; Picket Ends

CORE and Mrs. Mat Walburn,, owner of the real estate firm at 90 East Blithedale Avenue, announced the settlement.

"We have reached agreement on four of our five proposals to Mrs. Walburn," said Douglas Quiett, CORE chairman.

Julius H. Selinger, attorney for Mrs. Walburn, stated: "A no-discrimination policy in serving all qualified, bonafide prospects for renting, buying and selling housing accommodations will be practiced by the Walburn office in full compliance with the law of California."

CORE pickets first appeared at Walburn's Nov. 16 in the organization's first local demonstration. The protest was against allegations that the firm showed homes in a lower price range to white clients but told two Negro women that nothing in such a price range was available.

Quiett said today the agreement was the first "definite result of CORE's protest of discrimination in housing." The four points include Walburn's agreement to serve all customers equally and advertise an "equal" policy by placing a sign in the firm's window.

Marin Nipped By Jack Frost

The coldest spot reported was Woodacre where the thermometer dropped to 25 degrees.

Other overnight lows were Novato, 30; San Anselmo, 34; and San Rafael and Belvedere, 36.

Nehru Sickness Rumors Mount

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indications mounted today that Prime Minister Nehru is sicker than official statements have led the Indian public to believe.

A government publicity officer warned that photographs of the 74-year-old Indian statesman will not be permitted when he returns to New Delhi.

He has not been photographed since taken ill on Tuesday in Bhubaneswar where his ruling Congress party held its annual meeting.

Cultural Talks

MOSCOW (UPI)—The official Soviet News Agency Tass reported today that Russia and Afghanistan have opened negotiations here on a cultural cooperation plan.

30 Feared Lost As Boats Collide

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — About 30 persons are feared to have perished yesterday when a dugout canoe and a motor launch collided on the Niger River.

The accident happened near Onitsha in eastern Nigeria and 10 bodies have been recovered. About 45 others were rescued.

Rafferty Calls '63 'Wonderful Year'

The "wonderful year" is over and California will now begin to see "education in depth," Dr. Maxwell Rafferty told an audience of 175 persons last night in Sausalito's Central School auditorium.

Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, spoke rhapsodically of "that strange, bubbling, boiling thing in California, which is education."

He said 1963 was "that wonderful year" which comes "once in a blue moon . . . a brief moment out of time, a year of wonders, the old Romans called it.

"Never have more changes occurred in 12 months than in any 12 years," he said.

In the revolution of 180-degree shift now taking place, he listed these achievements:

"For the first time de facto racial problems were added to other problems. For the first time the state department of education appointed Negro and Mexican educators to high positions.

"We moved powerfully to battle the school drop out problem; the school finance bill in 1963 was a legislative landmark.

"There was the battle of the books in 1963. Here, where the need was the greatest, the change was the greatest . . . textbook companies came to my office to discuss changes — more facts, less trivia; more excitement, less dullness; more vocabulary words, less pandering to the lowest common denominator; more accuracy, less error. These are some changes we demanded and which are promised by publishers. The effects will be slow.

"In the wonderful year we began dropping the term 'social studies' for actual names of studies," said Rafferty. "We began to cut down on the 'how to teach teachers' and increase the 'what to teach teachers.'

"We urged that the world's great religions be handed down from generation to generation, the Judeo-Christian religion, not sectarian religion.

"We revised the old formula for site acquisition to permit districts to build new schools less expensively, thus saving taxpayers millions in the next few years.

"We have seen progressive education be put on the run in 1963 from Yreka in the north to Calexico in the south."

Shark Attacks Divers From Marinite's Boat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A huge shark attacked a group of skin divers near the Farallon Islands off the San Francisco coast today, mangling one man's legs seriously.

The victim, identified as John Rochette, 21, Burlingame, was picked up by Coast Guard helicopter and flown to the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital here.

Rochette was among members of the Southern Pacific Diving Club — employees of Southern Pacific Railroad—who had chartered the 42-foot Salmon Queen out of Sausalito for a day of skin diving off the Farallones.

"There were about 10 people in the water," Salmon Queen skipper Hank D. Schramm of 137 Canal Street, San Rafael, said via ship-to-shore telephone; "I saw one shark—about the biggest one I've ever seen. I was afraid to shoot because of the people in the water."

Gate Span: 'Suicide Bridge'

Golden Gate Bridge is becoming known as the "suicide bridge," district directors were told yesterday, and the reasons for its morbid popularity ought to be looked into.

"I think we would all feel better if we knew we had done all we could to find a solution to this problem," said Ben A. Lerer, bridge district board president.

Lerer commented on the 255 known suicides from the 26-year-old span. He proposed that a committee be formed to review all available information on why persons contemplating suicide choose the Golden Gate Bridge.

Safeguards such as barricades along bridge railings, electrically charged wires and nets have been dismissed in the past as being impractical.

The problem is a medical one, Lerer said, and he suggested "we can solicit organizations interested in this field." The board voted to submit the matter to its security committee for further study.

Traffic on the bridge increased 5.5 per cent in 1963 with 23,198,063 vehicles crossing, James Adam, general manager, reported.

The increase was 1,229,999 vehicles over 1962, and the total year's traffic produced $5,178,937 in toll revenue.

August was the heaviest traffic month, when 2,259,244 vehicles crossed the span.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Russia Signs For U.S. Wheat Deal

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union today signed a contract to buy one million tons of wheat in the United States, Tass reported in a broadcast monitored here.

Tass said the contract was signed in Moscow by Leonid Matveyev, chairman of the "Exportkhleb" foreign trade organization of the USSR and Roy Folk, vice president of the Continental Grain Corp. of the United States.

Wallace May Run

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says he may run for the U.S. presidency, he thinks there is too much intolerance and hatred in the country and he feels the Negro and white races get along better together in Alabama than in the rest of the nation.

These were among his observations yesterday at a news conference where Wallace parried questions and answers from an audience that was part-white, part-Negro, mostly critical.

Wallace told his hearers that the ' 'so-called civil rights" bill pending before the U.S. Congress merely serves to cloak the inroads the federal government is making upon states' rights.

He said the bill would "destroy property rights," and that people could not have human rights or civil rights unless their property rights were first safeguarded.

Kennedy Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her two children, Caroline and John Jr., are spending the weekend at "Wexford," their home on Rattlesnake Mountain near Atoka, Va.

This is the first trip to Atoka for the former first lady since her return last week from a year-end holiday stay at Palm Beach, Fla.

'Dominique' Hit

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—The Baptist Press, under the byline of Dr. Duke K. McCall, president of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, said today the popular song "Dominique," is "bigotry set to music."

The song as recorded by a Belgian nun, Souer Sourire (Sister Smile) has become an international best-seller.

McCall, in an article which he said he intended only as a letter of comment to the Baptist publication, asserted that the song recalls with pride in the Inquisition by which the Dominican Order . . . persecuted the Albigensians," in the 13th Century.

The Albigensians were a religious sect in Southern France.

McCall said the English version of the lyrics which appears on the record jacket is a misleading translation. The French words which really say, "Dominique . . . was fighting the Albigensians," are translated as "Dominique . . . was fighting sin like anything," McCall said.

Brown To Speak

'Workers' Take Machines Away

Two men posing as construction workers drove off with a couple of road compaction machines yesterday from the Mill Valley interchange at Highway 101, Marin sheriff's deputies were told.

The Coan Equipment Co. of Richmond complained to the sheriff's office that an order was received by the firm to supply two machines, worth $2,690, to the Perini Corp. of San Francisco for use on the "Golden Gate Project." The machines were to be delivered to a truck at the interchange.

A truck driver for the Coan company said two men in a green pickup truck, marked with the Perini firm's name and address met him, put the machines in their truck and drove away.

The hoax was discovered when the Coan firm checked with Perini in San Francisco and was told no work order had been issued and no Perini trucks were in Marin yesterday.

Student Is Beaten At Drake

William A. Cary, 18, cheer leader at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo, was beaten and knocked unconscious yesterday morning in a fight with another student in a school corridor, San Anselmo police said.

His condition at Marin General Hospital today was reported good and improved. He suffered a head injury and bruises but regained consciousness at the hospital shortly after the incident.

Police Chief Raymond Buchignani said the opponent, 17, has been charged with assault and battery and given a juvenile citation to appear at Marin County Probation Department Wednesday afternoon.

He said the 17-year-old apparently had been "poking" Cary with a pencil during class, and the two went to a hallway after the period and began fist-fighting.

He said Cary, son of the Mr. and Mrs. William Cary, 125 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, was knocked down and possibly struck a corridor locker in falling. Cary was also either struck with his opponent's knee, or kicked with his shoe, Chief Buchignani added.

Man Reports Attack By 'Vicious' Dogs

Plumber William R. Lehman of 28 Jewell Street, San Rafael, complained to Marin sheriff's deputies yesterday that he had been attacked in Greenbrae by three "vicious" dogs.

His description of the dogs was verified when Deputy Ernest Nielsen arrived at 14 Via Chapparo in answer to Lehman's call. While taking the report, Neilsen said the three dogs "made advances in a menacing manner."

Lehman said he was doing a job at the house at No. 14 and walked down to the street to turn off a valve when the three "large, tan colored dogs" rushed him. One bit him on his right leg, above the ankle.

Nielsen said the dogs were called back to their home at 12 Via Chapparo and the Marin County Humane Society was told to contact owner Irving Kaldor about the dogs.

Fairfax Man Hurt As Auto Hits Pole

Robert N. MacLean, 40, of 202 Marinda Drive, Fairfax, suffered minor injuries at 1 a.m. today when his car veered off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, east of Corte Comoda, in Kentfield and struck a power pole.

MacLean, who suffered a cut lip, was treated at Marin General Hopital and released. He told the California Highway Patrol that he had been crowded off the road by another vehicle.

Four Injured In Separate Auto Crashes

Four persons were injured, none seriously, in two separate traffic accidents early today near Highway 101 and Francisco Boulevard at the San Rafael city limits.

Police said the first accident occurred at the intersection just outside the city limits at 12:05 a.m. Injured were Mrs. Dorothy E. Eberwein, 58, of 14 Inverness Drive, San Rafael, and Robert Wilson, 19, of 35 Curtis Avenue, San Rafael.

Mrs. Eberwein suffered multiple bruises and was admitted at San Rafael General Hospital where her condition today was good.

San Rafael police said a traffic pile-up resulting from the accident caused a three-vehicle accident at 12:08 a.m. on Francisco Boulevard within city limits.

A car driven by Robert Lee Bemisderfer, 55, of 241 West End Ave., San Rafael, hit the rear of the halted car of Virginia Sue Armer, 147 Humboldt Avenue, San Anselmo, which in turn hit the rear of the car driven by George Nicholas Koklis, 16, of 50 Deer Park Avenue, San Rafael.

Injured were Koklis, admitted at Marin General Hospital for treatment of multiple bruises and cuts, and Marnie Lou Brace, 14, of 92 Louise Street, San Rafael, treated at the hospital for a head bump and released.

Girl Is Struck Crossing Street

Regina Berreyesa, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Berreyesa, 124 Prospect Avenue, San Anselmo, was injured yesterday morning when struck by a car at the intersection of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Barber Avenue in San Anselmo.

Her condition was reported as good and improving at Marin General Hospital today.

San Anselmo police said Regina and two schoolmates were crossing Sir Francis Drake Boulevard when she was hit by a car driven by Galen Glen Armstrong, 17, of 11 Midway Avenue, Mill Valley.

No citation was issued, officers said.

Warnings Issued For Marin City

Thirty-five Marin City families living in temporary war housing were notified today by the Redevelopment Agency of Marin County they must make a deposit on a cooperative apartment in Marin City within 30 days.

If they do not, their leases are subject to cancellation.

Twelve families who are over income and living in the Marin City low rent project were notified today by the Marin County Housing Authority they have 30 days to make a deposit on a cooperative apartment in Marin City. Likewise, if they do not, their leases are subject to cancellation.

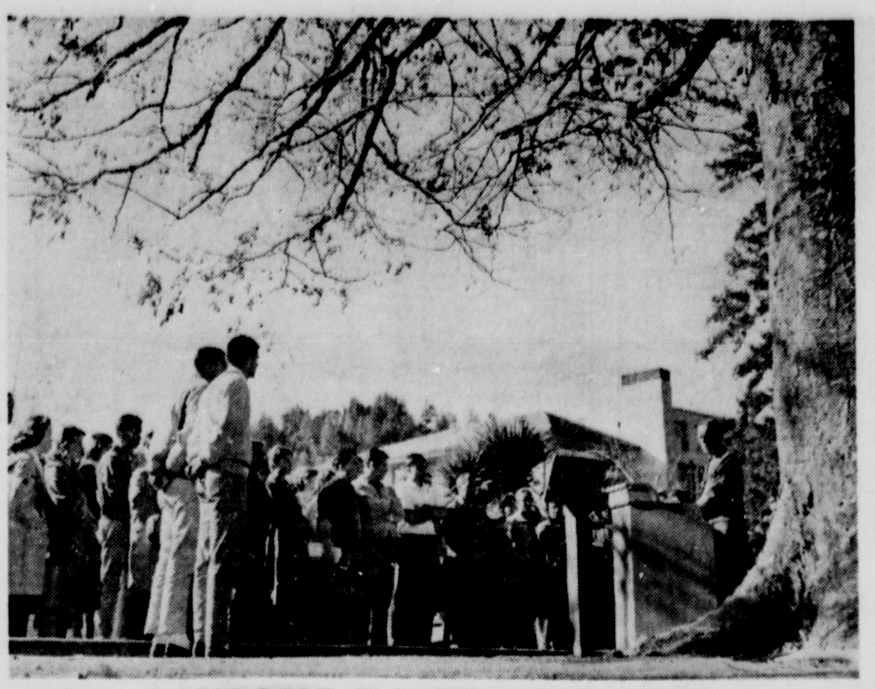

One hundred and nine families in temporary housing were notified they are entitled to relocation assistance from the Redevelopment Agency.

This means, said Donald O. Stutsman, executive director, the agency will attempt to locate these families either in the low-rent project, in single family homes to be constructed in Marin City, in Hilarita Housing Project at Tiburon or in private housing within the county. No deadline has been set for the 109 families to move from temporary housing.

Stutsman said he reported incorrectly to the Independent-Journal Jan. 8 that 154 families living in temporary housing have 30 days in which to find other housing.

BIGGEST ELM FOR PRESIDENT

College of Marin students listen solemnly as huge Japanese elm on the Kentfield campus is dedicated to John F. Kennedy's memory. Lee Blomquist, chairman of the social science department, speaks during yesterday's brief ceremony. The elm, among several on the campus, is said by Sunset Magazine to be the biggest Japanese elm on the West Coast.

5 Travel Films Set At College

A series of five color travel films, sponsored by the Associated Students of the College of Marin and the Explorers Club of San Franciosco, will be given in Olney Hall at the college on Thursdays at 8 p.m.

The proceeds from ticket sales will go towards the college's scholarship fund, according to Rich Coburn, college public relations commissioner.

The films are: Jan. 23, "Spain and the Legendary Mediterranean"; Feb. 20, "Egypt—Pharaohs and Fellahs"; March 12, "Alone Across Asia"; April 2, "Close Up," and May 7, "Easter Island."

Terra Linda High School Elects Student Officers

Michael M. Parker, son of Mrs. Frank M. Parker, 8 Cushing Avenue, Santa Venetia, has been elected president of the Terra Linda High School student body for the spring semester. An election was held Thursday with a runoff yesterday.

Parker, a senior, defeated Eric Davison, Bob Hamilton and Peter Kienast for the post.

James W. Timmel, a junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Temmel, 782 Appleberry Drive, Lucas Valley, was elected vice president, defeating Dan Dobozin in a runoff after the pair first bested senior John Hinman.

Diane Congdon defeated Marsha Clowers and Sandra McKillop to become the new secretary, and incumbent Benjamin Edger was elected again as treasurer over Scott Cail.

Diane Bernard was picked as commissioner of social affairs, Marsh Simpson as commissioner of spirit, Carleen Duque as commissioner of assemblies and Bonnie Brown was returned as commissioner of public relations.

School Bonds Are Attacked In Fairfax

Lawrence Woods, chairman of the Fairfax Committee on Education which opposes Tuesday's $175,000 school bond vote, has mailed out letters to school district voters attacking the measure.

Woods, in turn, has been taken to task by a Fairfax housewife who calls Woods' letter "highly misleading."

Woods' letter leads off by describing the election as a $590,935 bond election. Mrs. M. L. Dollahite of 59 Bolinas Road, Fairfax, declares that the bond election is for $175,000 in bonds, passage of which would enable the district to borrow state funds and use $145,000 in previously approved bonds for a $590,935 construction and land purchase program.

Mrs. Dollahite also charges Woods with "specious reasoning" in saying that the enrollment has grown by 123 pupils in the past four years and cannot be expected to grow more than that in the next four years. He claims that voters are being asked to approve more than half a million for 123 pupils.

Woods also says in his letter that the same measure was decisively defeated in June. Mrs. Dollahite said she does not think the vote—574 for to 383 against—a decisive defeat. A two-thirds majority was needed for passage.

Army Employee Given Honor At Fort Mason

Jake Hamburg of 384 Tennessee Avenue, Mill Valley, was presented Thursday with a certificate in recognition of 40 years federal service by Raymond C. Conroy, brigadier general, commanding officer, U.S. Army Terminal Command of the Pacific, in ceremonies at Fort Mason, San Francisco.

Hamburg, who has had 24 years Army service, including 10 campaigns and three invasions during World War II, plus 16 years civilian service, works in the department of post engineers at Fort Mason.

The first class of the United States Air Force Academy started training on July 11, 1955, at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colo.

Fifth Graders To See Films Of SS Hope

Fifth graders at Oliver R. Hartzell School, Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael, will see films at 11 a.m. Thursday of the hospital ship SS Hope, to which they gave a Christmas gift of $21.16.

The films will be shown at the school by Dr. Richard S. Hahn, San Rafael physician who was aboard the vessel two months in Ecuador.

On receipt of the class' gift and letters a note of appreciation was sent by Dr. Eldon E. Ellis, president of the Bay Area Hope medical staff.

"This gift," he wrote, "will help to promote friendship and understanding among nations who really don't know Americans are kind and generous. I am sending your letters to the ship so that the Ecuador children can know you as their personal friend . . . "

Scout Council Installation Set

The Marin Boy Scout Council will have its annual installation of officers and recognition dinner Jan. 21 at 7 p.m. at council headquarters, 739 A Street, San Rafael.

Two silver beaver awards, the highest in scouting, will be awarded, reported Thomas J. Barfield of Bolinas, council president.

Mail balloting for 1964 officers will be tallied Jan. 20.

State College Talk

Dr. Larry L. Foster, Dean of Admissions at San Francisco State College, will discuss State College admission procedures and courses of study at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Little Theater at San Rafael High School, Union Street and Mission Avenue. High school students and their parents are invited.

POLITICAL BRIEFS

Candidate For Young GOP Staunch Goldwater Backer

Mill Valley accountant John W. Clow, 33, who seeks the state presidency of the Young Republicans, is a staunch backer of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

So are the other two announced candidates. John A. Gromala, 33, Fortuna attorney, says: "Senator Goldwater is the best man to lead our nation to greater fulfillment."

James R. Slaybaugh, 34, Fremont attorney, considers himself less of a conservative than either Clow or Gromala. However, Slaybaugh also has worked for Goldwater in the East Bay.

Noted atomic scientist Dr. Edward Teller has come out in favor of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for president.

Assemblyman William Byron Rumford of Berkeley warned that passage of the proposed constitutional amendment sponsored by the California Real Estate Assn. would cripple all urban renewal programs in California.

He quotes M. Justin Herman of Sausalito, executive director of the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency, as saying:

"Years of legislative progress, designed to tailor California's laws to the benefits available under the Federal Housing program, would be absolutely jeopardized by the initiative."

Rotary Club Talk

The two girls who represented Wilkins Unit 37 of the American Legion Auxiliary of San Rafael at the 1963 session of Girls State in Sacramento will address the Rotary Club of San Rafael at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, San Rafael, at lunch Monday. They are Sue Tobin of San Rafael High School and Michelle Katzman of Terra Linda High. Mrs. William Ghilotti, Girls State co-chairman, will accompany them.

Pontiff's Voice On KTIM Show

Listeners to Radio KTIM's 10 a.m. news tomorrow will hear the voice of Pope Paul VI as a part of the local station's world news coverage.

"It's true he speaks only for about half a miunte," said news editor Karl Barron, "but it's the actual voice of the pontiff, speaking in English."

This is part of KTIM's newest feature coverage, which brings Marin listeners the voices of the people who make the news throughout the world, Barron explained.

PUPPETS FOR LITTLE PATIENTS

Little Francis Hatch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Hatch of Mill Valley, examines "Pinkie," the hand puppet made under the direction of Marin General Hospital Volunteer Mrs. Ray Hamilton of San Rafael. Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Lee Marriott, San Rafael, head a Pink Lady workshop at Marin General which gives puppets to all patients in the hospital's pediatrics ward. On a youngster's first visit to Marin General he receives a "pinkie" puppet; on a second visit he receives one of the "doctor" puppets, shown at left, and on a third visit, he gets a "nurse" puppet.

COMPARING HER "nurse" hand puppet with the "pinkie" puppet held by Mrs. Hamilton is Marisa Ann Priolo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Salvator J. Priolo of San Rafael. (Ken Molino photos)

'Our American Heritage' Theme For Junior Theatre's Program

"Our American Heritage" is the theme chosen by the Belvedere-Tiburon Junior Theater Unit in cooperation with San Francisco State College for its unique program of dramatic education. Sign-ups are scheduled for Jan. 15 at 3 p.m. at the Reed School, announced Mrs. Irving Lipschultz, unit president.

A parent or guardian must be present at that meeting so that the child may participate in the early spring workshop. Membership responsibilities will be explained at the meeting, Mrs. Lipschultz said.

TIBURON PENINSULA high school students, as well as seventh and eigth grade students are being encouraged to write one-act plays based on "Our American Heritage" during the spring. Students will also be encouraged to design sets and costumes which may be used in the unit's summer productions.

PUPILS IN THE third through sixth grades who live in the area will also be encouraged to produce appropriate writing and art to be used as exercise material in Junior Theater-San Francisco State College training workshops during the year. Some local teachers will instruct their students in these areas during the remainder of the school year.

NOT LIMITED to the public schools, interested secondary, parochial and private schools are welcome to share the cooperative plan, according to Mrs. Marshall B. Figari, planning chairman for the unit.

A creative arts committee is being formed composed of drama faculty from San Francisco State, local educators, theatrical professionals and Junior Theatre leaders. The committee will judge the entries selected as outstanding by the various schools. Much of the material submitted will be published under the supervision of the Belvedere-Tiburon unit.

DURING THE EARLY spring workshop, which starts in February, groups of pupils in the third through 12th grade will study drama with a team of student teachers from San Francisco State College. Faculty guests will also appear during the workshops and present lecture demonstrations.

BELVEDERE-TIBURON Unit of Junior Theatre of Marin has chosen "Our American Heritage" as the theme for its new program of dramatic education in cooperation with San Francisco State College. Here Allen Gralnick, Tamalpais High School student, gets ideas for the upcoming workshop sessions. He is a member of the unit's Teen-Age Workshop and president of The Players. (Cole photo)

Two Hostesses Entertain At Hawthorne Terrace Home

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Mrs. James Olson of Tiburon was honored at a luncheon Thursday at the Hawthorne Terrace home of Mrs. Fred Reusche. A co-hostess was Mrs. Harry Windblad. Mrs. Olson was showered with stork gifts. Guests were Mesdames Joseph Keller, Milton Levitan, Robert Hoots, Geoffrey Jones, Lloyd Bird, Ronald Crawford, Alfred Casella, William Rathgeb, Al Trobbe, Charles Dreyer, Jack Kampmeyer, Robert Seitas, Oliver Estes, John Hahn, Michael Scholl, Robert Vallee and Joseph Cranmer.

MEMBERS of the fourth generation of the Dufficy family to be baptized in St. Raphael's Church were Molly Ann Dufficy and Karen Baukol. The babies are the granddaughters of Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy and Mrs. Dufficy of San Rafael. Molly Ann is the daughter of Rafael G. Dufficy III and his wife, who are living in Davis while he attends the University of California at Davis. Karen's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Baukol of Mill Valley. The babies are the great-granddaughters of Mrs. Rafael G. Dufficy and the late Dr. Dufficy and great-great-granddaughters of the late Michael C. Dufficy of San Rafael, who was justice of the peace in Marin County during the 1890's.

The Rev. John Petroni officiated at the baptismal ceremony. Godmother of the babies is Margaret Helen Dufficy, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dufficy. Godfather is Timothy Fewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fewell (Nancy Dufficy) of San Rafael.

NEW RESIDENTS of Tiburon are Dr. and Mrs. Paul Stillson who have a daughter, Janet, an eighth grader at Del Mar School, and a son, Richard, a student at Washington State University. Dr. Stillson is a consultant in Operations Research and has an office in Tiburon. The Stillsons formerly lived in Los Angeles and were in Marin several months before moving to Tiburon.

THE JOHN WITTERS of Ross joined the large Witter clan today at noon at the University of California's football stadium for a program on the university which will be televised. The title for the documentary film is "Chet Huntley Reports on the 1,000-Mile Campus." The telecast will be in color.

The Witter delegation was headed by Dean Witter, who was graduated from UC in 1909. It included all members of the family who are graduates of the university. Among those in the family group were the Jean Witters, Guy Witters, Edwin Witters, Charles Witters, Wendell Witters, Thomas Witters and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bates (Nancy Witter). Mr. and Mrs. John Witter are both graduates of the university. Following the television program the family had luncheon at the Claremont Country Club.

MR. AND MRS. BRUCE LORD, who moved into the Cote d'Azur apartments in Sausalito just before the holidays had as their houseguests, her father, Mac McLean of Eugene, Oregon, Bruce's mother, Mrs. W. F. Lord and her daughter, Pam, who live in Portland, Oregon.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD LECLERQ have as their houseguests at their Cote d'Azur apartment in Sausalito Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bauer of Medford, Ore. The Leclerqs stayed at the Awahnee in Yosemite for the holidays. This has been their custom for the past six years.

VIRGINIA CUNNINGHAM

Virginia Cunningham To Wed

The engagement of Virginia Grace Cunningham and David B. Crittenden III has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Cunningham of Larkspur.

Virginia is the sister of Katherine and James Cunningham of Larkspur and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Barry of Huntington Park and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham of Kentfield. A Redwood High School graduate, she is in her senior year at University of California at Davis, where her major is microbiology.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Crittenden II of Hebron, Conn. and the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Crittenden of Atherton and Plantation Camp, where the young couple met while they were counselors there. He is a senior at St. Lawrence College at Canton, N.Y.

The engagement news was announced at a family buffet luncheon at the Cunningham home on Sunday.

The couple's wedding plans are indefinite.

Parents Study Child Books

NEW YORK (AP) — Parents are studying children's science books in an effort to keep up with the small fry.

The tremendous sale of some science books nonplussed the publishers until they discovered that the books also had adult appeal, says Wallace Black, who evolved a 20-volume young people's Science Encyclopedia, the only one of its kind, published last year.

"Most parents caught in the space age dilemma are behind in some of the sophisticated areas such as electronics, space and nuclear power. What you studied in college physics or chemistry doesn't help much when your third-grade child comes home and wants to discuss the half-life of an atom. You feel a little foolish not knowing the answers," says Black, father of an 8-year-old.

Brown Says Jordan Lives In Past; But Is That Bad?

THE TROUBLE WITH Secretary of State Frank Jordan, said Governor Brown the other day, is that Jordan is living in the past.

This is truer than the governor may have realized when he popped off.

Frank Jordan still leaves his office door wide open so any citizen who wants to talk to him can walk right in without even passing through a reception room, much less having to buck a corps of receptionists concerned about appointments and what-not.

The other day, Wat Takeshita and I went to Sacramento to size-up the capitol, in preparation for covering the forthcoming session of the legislature.

We strolled in and, sure enough, the door marked "Frank C. Jordan, Secretary of State" was ajar. We stepped in.

Jordan arose and greeted us warmly, apologizing for his inability to see clearly since he is recovering from cataract surgery.

He explained that his recovery was impeded when he tore a stitch last weekend while carrying furniture out of his home as fire threatened to burn the place down.

Obviously he is a stout fellow, considering he already has achieved the Biblical allotment of three score and ten.

AS WAT AND I took our leave, I was moved to recall that only little more than a century ago Abraham Lincoln's office door in the White House was open at certain times on certain days, making it possible for any citizen of the nation to walk right in and tell the president how to run the country; no appointment necessary.

The population of the U.S.A. in Lincoln's day was comparable to the population of California today.

Not far from the open door to Frank Jordan's office, stands a sign inviting visitors to tour the governor's offices—only during the lunch hour when the governor himself is almost sure to be out.

Yes, Frank Jordan is old fashioned.

But government would be closer to the people if we had more like him.

IN FAIRNESS, LET it be noted that the governor's criticism of Jordan was based on the latter's association with the group advocating overthrow of the Rumford "fair housing" law.

The I-J supported passage of the Rumford Act at the last session of the legislature. I think Jordan is wrong now. But I don't see where being old fashioned has anything much to do with it.

THE MAILBAG: John J. Connelly, the I-J baseball columnist who is supposed to be in hibernation at this season, responded to my first column here as follows:

"Dear Jack—Once upon a time there was an editor who enjoyed the confidence and admiration of the San Rafael Independent-Journal readers. His stuff was anonymous. Then the bright young man decided to unveil his identity . . . to actually become a columnist. I met him the other night. His head was bowed. He was enveloped in grief. He read one letter after another and not one of 'em even said one nice word about his stuff.

" 'I couldn't be that bad,' said the editor to himself. 'But you are,' explained his wife . . .

" . . . Good luck, Jack, and learn to duck.

"Cordially,

"JOHN J. CONNELLY"

All I can say, is thanks for the encouragement.

—Jack Craemer

The Time When Birds Need Suet

If ever Marinites put suet in their bird-feeders, the time to do it is now. Birds are regular little furnaces. They have a high metabolism and their body temperature is several degrees above ours. Such furnaces require rich fuel in cold weather.

Natural food is quite scarce during the winter season. Do the birds a favor and feed them now—and especially, give them suet. They need the calories.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET—make it a double—to Bill Gnoss on his election as chairman of the Board of Supervisors.

BOUQUETS, too, to Bill and Ada Fusselman for their 50th wedding anniversary and for his completion of another term as supervisorial chairman.

BOUQUETS to the Mill Valley city council for acting to save the 50-year-old leaning oak tree at West Blithedale and Cottage avenues. This tends to help preserve the atmosphere that makes Mill Valley what it is.

BOUQUETS to Randall Gould on his retirement last week from the editorial staff of the I-J, after more than 45 years practice of the profession of journalism. May his forthcoming trip around the world with Mrs. Gould be most enjoyable. We wouldn't be surprised if it turns out he is collecting material for a book to be written "in retirement."

BRICKBATS—a whole hod full — to the directors of the Marin Hospital District for conducting deliberations relating to the spending of public monies in closed session, in violation of the spirit of the Ralph M. Brown anti-secrecy law.

A BOUQUET to Donald A. Stutsman on his appointment as executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority.

A BOUQUET to the Larkspur-Corte Madera Junior Chamber of Commerce for arranging their forthcoming seat belt installation days.

A BOUQUET to Herbert F. Brandt of San Rafael on his appointment as manager of the new Emporium department store to open soon at Northgate.

FACTORY HIRES MAN WHO ROBBED IT

A thief in London claims the distinction of landing a job with the same company he was caught stealing from.

"I only stole because I had been out of work for 11 months and had no money," the 55-year-old man explained. He was arrested for taking tea, sugar, biscuits, and sweets from a factory in London's East End.

When he was put on probation for two years and hired as a laborer for $56 a week by the same company, he made this comment: "I really intend to show the management that their goodness isn't going to be abused."

Despite regrettable and sometimes tragic failures, human nature is always capable of improvement.

Whether it is in the rehabilitation of prisoners, finding jobs for those who desperately need work or any other activity that demands confidence in your fellow human beings, try to act with the same patience, love and respect that God shows towards you.

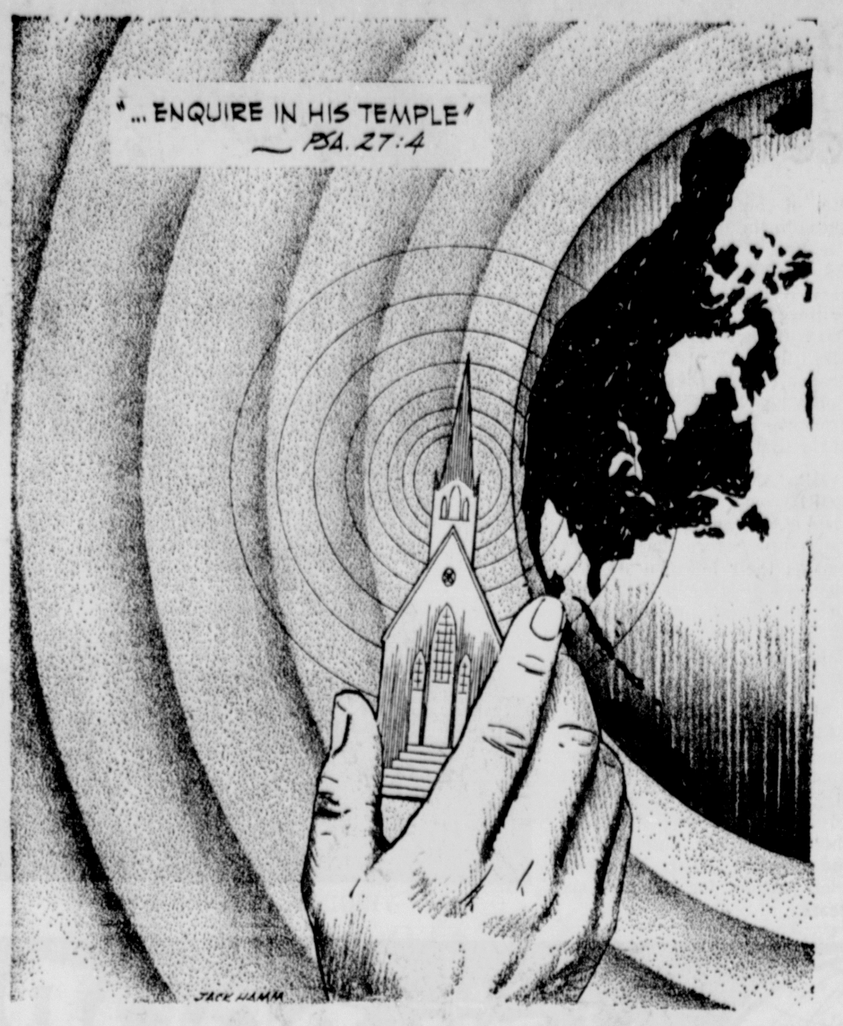

Then, even though you may experience disappointments, you will be the source of hope to many and leave the world a better place than you found it.

"There will be joy among the angels of God over one sinner who repents."

(Luke 15:10)

Help me, O Lord, to be realistic but hopeful in all my dealings with my fellow man.

Politics Runs In McCarthy Family

Editor, Independent-Journal:

This is a twist for us. For a change, instead of campaigning for our Dad, Senator Jack McCarthy, we're asking for votes for our Mom. She has been nominated for Queen of the Mardi Gras in San Francisco, the big ball that benefits Children's Hospital.

Some of you know Mom as Lambie, some as Ursula. To us she is Mom—a great Mom—but I guess we never tell her this, so we were real glad when they asked her to be a candidate for Mardi Gras Queen. She said this kind of morale boost should come to all her friends who are moms like her.

This is one time you can vote more than once if you want, because the votes are only 10 cents apiece. All the money goes to help real sick children get well at Children's Hospital. We think this is great. Hope you do too.

We know that campaigns are only won by the wonderful help of friends. We sure would appreciate it if you would ask a few of your friends to make a donation to Little Jim Club of Children's Hospital for Mom and mail to her before Feb. 5.

Thank you very much.

Heart Victim Johnson Has Begun Most Strenuous Year In His Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — For President Lyndon B. Johnson 1964, which will be the most intense year of his life, is like being condemned to a gymnasium. It is going to be an endless workout. That seems to be the way he wants it.

JOHNSON WAS 46 and President Dwight D. Eisenhower 64 when they had their heart attacks in 1955. It laid them both up for months. Thereafter Eisenhower carefully paced himself through six more years of the presidency.

Johnson did the opposite. Starting the day after he left the hospital, he invited newspaper reporters to his home. He gave the impression of a man raring to go, which is probably the exact impression he wanted to give.

At any rate, he seemed to take his heart attack as an invitation to pitch harder.

AFTER SOME MONTHS of rest that year Johnson returned to his job as Democratic majority leader in the Senate and resumed his hectic pace. Then in 1960, when he had to campaign for the vice presidency, he outdid even his Senate energy.

Johnson, in his almost three years under President John F. Kennedy, continued to spread his physical effort like jam over days and nights as he whipped around making speeches and on foreign trips assigned him by Kennedy.

In all this, since Johnson was a completely secondary figure in the Kennedy administration, he was not under severe tension. Kennedy was the one who had to endure that. He was the one who had to make decisions and do the struggling.

Now Johnson gets the full load of the physical and mental activity which go with the presidency, plus its tensions. In short, 1964 will be the greatest year of strain in his life.

Just the physical part of it is a kind of physical torture: the handshaking, the reception lines, the speechmaking, the banquets, maybe trips abroad, battles with Congress, the need to stay in camera focus.

On top of it all will come the campaign for election.

IN LESS THAN two months in office he has put a far heavier physical strain on himself than even the very active Kennedy.

Johnson seems unable to sit quietly and, so far as newsmen are concerned, to stop talking. He bounces in and out, up and down, consults with advisers, holds instant news conferences, meets with his Cabinet, hunts deer, gives personally conducted tours of his Texas ranch, keeps talking, has barbecues, strolls the streets, makes pronouncements, orders people around — he's noted for that — and keeps talking.

THERE'S NO REASON to think this won't be his routine for the rest of the year. How does all this set with a man who had a truly bad heart attack eight years ago? So far it seems to have worked all right.

Just a month ago one of his doctors, looking back over Johnson's eight years since the attack, says, "He has done beautifully. I don't know of anyone who gets up earlier, goes to bed later, works harder, and gets more done without any trouble than the president. He tolerates stresses that most people can't."

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Questioning Of Mrs. Oswald Sheds Some Light On Life Of Suspect

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The intensive questioning of Mrs. Lee Harvey Oswald by the FBI and Secret Service has shed revealing light on some important facets of the many mysteries still surrounding her and her husband.

IN THE DETAILED reports submitted to the special commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren, the government investigators make very clear that:

The 22-year-old Russian widow of Oswald is a thoroughly self-possessed, cool, calm and poised person, who is in full control of herself at all times. She has a complete grasp of what has happened, and what is taking place regarding her.

Mrs. Oswald has an excellent IQ, and is quite well educated, with 11 years of formal schooling, including three years of pharmaceutical training. This is equivalent to a better than high school education in the U.S., and means she was rated well by Russian standards, as only talented youths, especially women, are given more than elementary schooling. She was a laboratory assistant when she met Oswald.

While cooperating readily with the investigators on everything relating to herself and Oswald in this country, she has been reluctant and evasive in answering questions about their life in Russia and events leading up to his return to the U. S. — after apparently disavowing a written defection to the Soviet.

Still to be learned from Mrs. Oswald are exactly how and when she met her husband, whether she reported their meetings to Russian authorities, as Soviet citizens are required when having relations with foreigners, and what dealings and contacts Oswald had with Russians and officials during his three years there.

ON ALL THESE highly pertinent background points, Mrs. Oswald has been markedly "vague" and "fuzzy."

In discussing their life in the U.S., she is specific and positive about dates, individuals and events. But when interrogated about what transpired in Russia, her attitude and responses are decidedly different.

To get at the bottom of these significant matters is the reason the special commission is bringing Mrs. Oswald to Washington late this month for direct grilling — behind closed doors. The full commission will participate in this questioning.

The commission also wants more information about the Italian rifle allegedly used to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

THE FBI HAS been asked to conduct further tests on the time required to fire three shots. Reason for this is new evidence that the second and third shots came in exceptionally rapid succession. It was the third shot that shattered the back of the president's head, and fragmented. This has made very difficult determining whether that round was fired by the same rifle.

It also plans to send its own investigators to Mexico for a first-hand study of Oswald's mysterious trip there last September. At one session of the commission, J. Lee Rankin, general counsel, noted that the FBI learned from Mrs. Oswald that her husband left for Mexico on Sept. 26, the day the White House announced Kennedy would go to Texas.

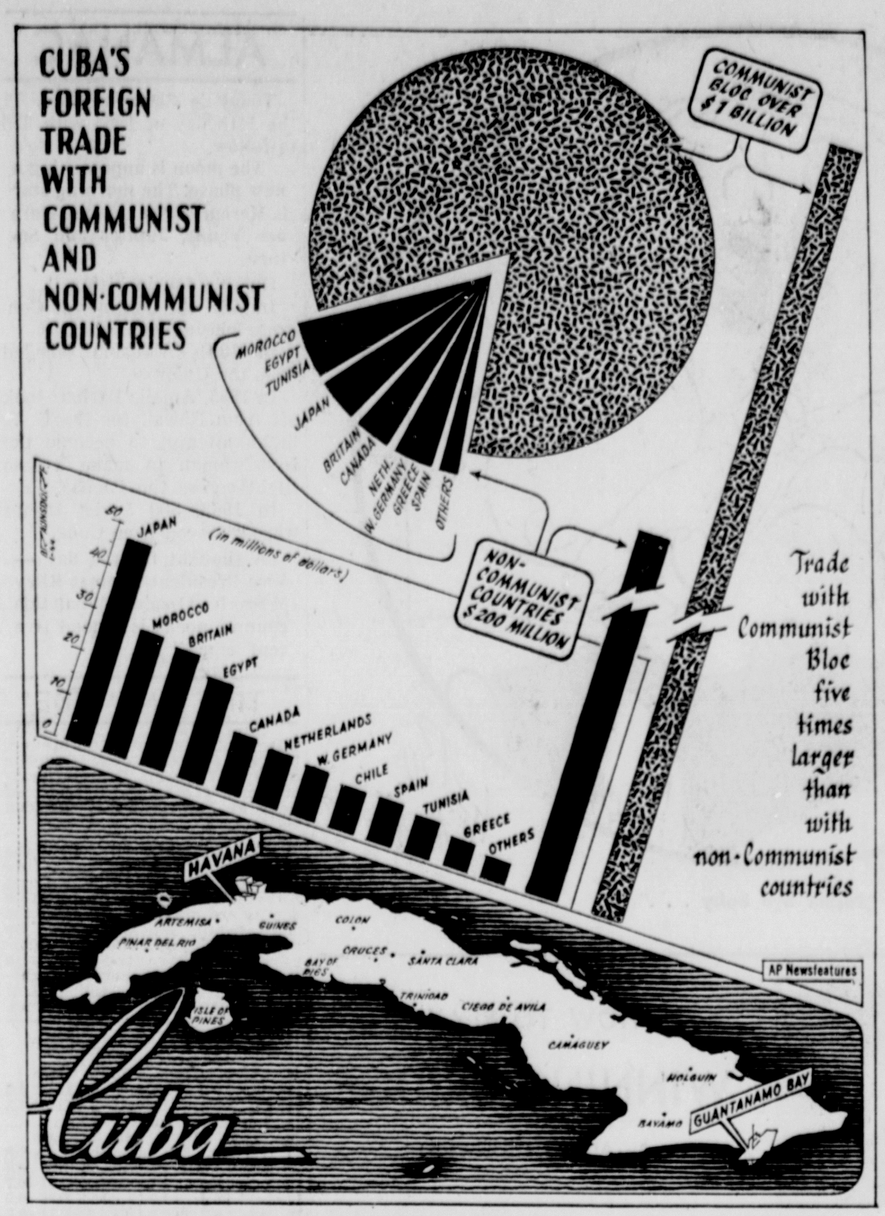

From Mexican authorities, the FBI has ascertained that Oswald arrived in Mexico City on Sept. 27, took a room in a cheap hotel, and went immediately to the Cuban consulate where he sought a visa to Cuba for the avowed purpose of going from there to Russia.

According to the Mexicans, the Cuban consulate sent Oswald to the Soviet embassy. Still unknown is whether he actually went there and, if he did, what happened.

Strongly suspected by U.S. investigators is that Oswald was carefully preparing an escape route.

The special commission is also seeking from the State Department its Security Office's file on the killer. A record was compiled on him after he notified the Moscow embassy of intention to defect to the Soviet.

The commission also has asked the State Department for a detailed study it has made of the slaying of world leaders in the past 200 years.

U. S. Ired By Cuban-Spain Trade

By FRANCIS STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The United States is unhappy over growing trade between Spain and Cuba.

As a result, Uncle Sam has been waggling a finger at Spain with increasing vigor in recent weeks.

Spain has been cautioned that her rapidly expanding economic relations with Fidel Castro's regime could jeopardize foreign aid from the U.S.

A U.S. law forbids aid to countries dealing with Cuba, and new regulations recently were issued to discourage non-Communist shipowners from taking part in trade between Cuba and other countries.

Spain, however, maintains that she has historical and cultural ties with Cuba, and also has a need for trade with Cuba. Spain further contends that good relations with Cuba are necessary in the interests of about 40,000 Spanish citizens now residing in Cuba.

The U.S. has made no formal protest to Spain but strong pressure has been applied through diplomatic channels.

The U.S. has a commitment to finance Spanish development through 100 million dollars in Export-Import Bank loans during the next several years.

It was included in a September agreement extending for five years the 1953 treaty under which American air and naval bases in Spanish territory were authorized.

The U.S. has long sought to get the non-Communist world to cut down on its dealings with Cuba, and has succeeded to a great extent except in the case of a few nations such as Japan.

Total free world trade with Cuba was estimated at 1.3 billion dollars in 1959 but has dropped off to less than 230 million dollars, according to most reliable figures now available.

On the other hand, Cuban trade with the Communist bloc has risen rapidly from virtually nothing to more than one billion dollars a year. The figure includes large supplies of military equipment.

Figures compiled in mid-1963 by the state department, commerce department, the United Nations and other agencies showed Japan's trade with Cuba in 1962 at 46.4 million dollars. This compared with 36.1 million dollars in 1961.

Most of Japan's trade with Cuba consisted of sugar purchases. Japan has been shipping manufactured goods to Cuba, though none of strategic value.

Although Cuban sugar harvests have been poor of late, Castro recently claimed that by 1970 his country will dominate the world market. He asserted that greatly expanded production and low prices will enable Cuba to ruin producers in capitalist countries.

A few days ago Castro announced that Cuba has made heavy purchases of Russian mechanical equipment for use in harvesting the sugar cane crop.

Surprisingly enough, the latest figures show that the second largest non-Communist trader with Cuba is Morocco. This trade was said to have increased from 9.7 million dollars in 1961 to 28 million dollars in 1962.

Britain followed as third,

Other countries in order were, with figures for 1961 and 1962 respectively, as follows, with figures in millions of dollars:

Egypt, 20 and 22; Canada, 35 and 12; Netherlands, 15 and 11.5; West Germany, 14 and 11.5; Chile, 15.7 and 10.5; Spain, 13.6 and 10 (this was before the recent increase in trade); Tunisia, 2 and 8.5; Greece, 3.4 and 6.7; Sweden, 2 and 4.6; Finland, .7 and 4.5; France, 6 and 4:, Syria, 5 and 3.6; Switzerland, 3.9 and 3.6, and Norway, 2.5 and 2.8.

THIS WEEK In The World

Panama Crisis Like Thunderclap

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The sudden outburst of blood-filled violence in Panama came crashing down upon the Johnson administration this week like a nightmarish thunderclap.

The presidential advisors had predicted a spell of comparative international tranquility. And the mood of world peace had been further engendered earlier this week by an historic visit to the holy land by Pope Paul VI.

The main "war" noted in Washington was the one mentioned in President Lyndon B. Johnson's state of the union message in which he called for an "unconditional war on poverty" and an end to civil rights inequities. The eyes of Texas were clearly focused on the domestic scene.

But student-inspired riots over the raising of American and Panamanian flags in the Canal Zone sent a death and hate-laden lightning bolt racing across the political skies and the nation found itself once more in a whirlwind of international crisis.

The riotous developments had these immediate results:

Panama broke diplomatic relations with the United States.

Panama's President Robert F. Chiari demanded a "complete revision" of the treaties under which the U.S. operates the Panama Canal in perpetuity.

Panama accused the U.S. of unprovoked, armed aggression and demanded that the canal be nationalized or be placed under international control.

An emergency session of the United Nation's Security Council heard Panama's charges and then recessed after issuing an appeal to both countries "to bring an immediate end (to) the exchange of fire and bloodshed."

Both Panama and the U.S. agreed to have the Organization of American States (OAS) investigate the canal crisis.

The OAS immediately dispatched its interamerican peace committee to the scene of the Canal Zone's fighting.

President Johnson spoke by phone with President Chiari and later Johnson, appealing for restraint, sent a special mission to Panama headed by his recently appointed special advisor for Latin-American affairs, Thomas C. Mann.

The rioting led to widespread destruction of American property and death or injuries to hundreds of persons.

Around The World Around The Clock

Havana—The U.S. inspired economic blockade of Cuba was pierced by an 11-million-dollar sale of British buses to the Castro government.

Calcutta — Indian prime minister, 74-year-old Jawaharlal Nehru, was stricken with an apparent mild paralytic stroke and doctors advised a three-to-six-month rest.

Nicosia, Cyprus—an uneasy truce prevailed on the strife-torn island as the government accepted a United Nation's peace role in the fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Berlin—West Berlin officials met with the Communists for the first time since the wall was opened but the word was that the cracks in the wall which permitted 1.2 million West Berliners to pay Christmas visits to East Berlin will not reopen soon.

FAIR MAY BUY TV EDITORIAL SUPPORT

Under Proposed Contract Directors Would Cease Radio-TV Advertising

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The California state fair board of directors is considering a contract under which it would drop all paid advertising on radio and television stations in the state and, instead, buy the editorial support of the stations for $15,000 a year.

The contract would be with the California Broadcasters Assn., an organization which first was founded in 1947. Since that time, its articles of incorporation have undergone several name changes.

The CBA purportedly represents "99 and one-half per cent" of all radio and television coverage in California, although there is some doubt as to whether all the stations in Sacramento, home city of the fair, even belonged to the group.

The state fair has operated with one budget for paid advertising and another for publicity purposes. In recent years, the advertising budget has been cut back considerably by the legislature but the publicity staff has grown, with some of it on hand the year around.

While the advertising budget was as high as nearly $90,000 some years ago, it now amounts to only about $32,000, with $15,000 of that for radio and television stations and $17,000 for newspapers.

The publicity staff is increased to nearly 30 persons during the 12 or 13 days of the fair.

The reduction of the advertising budget had a resultant drop in interest and coverage in the various news media, especially those which were some distance from Sacramento.

The proposed contract with CBA was scheduled to be considered at a meeting Jan. 19 of the state fair board of directors in Sacramento and was expected to be approved. A three-man committee from the directors has recommended approval of the contract.

Reports are that the $15,000 would be deposited in the treasury of the broadcasters' organization and the association, in turn, would encourage its members to support the fair in its news and public affairs shows.

Ben D. Martin, general manager of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn., was asked if a similar proposal had been made to the CNPA by the fair. Martin said the matter had been discussed preliminarily. However, he said there were a number of reasons why such a proposal would be unacceptable to the CNPA.

"In the first place, would it be legal?" Martin asked. "Is it proper for a state agency to contract with a private agency to provide such a service? What about the publishers in California who are not members of CNPA, or in the case of the broadcasters, the stations which are not members?

"Secondly," said Martin, "there would seem to be a question of ethics. CNPA members with whom this has been discussed felt it would be unethical to accept money in return for support of the fair in the editorial and news columns."

Theodore Rosequist, manager of the state fair, said a contract had been prepared by the state department of finance which was believed to be legal. He said the Los Angeles county fair in Pomona had been operating for a number of years under a similar contract with a southern broadcasters' association. Rosequist said he believed that organization now had been expended to include members from all over the state.

Rosequist said the CBA had said more than $15,000 might be necessary for the contract if the broadcasters were to provide news coverage of events at the fairgrounds other than the fall state fair, such as the spring fair and the quarter horse race meeting set for this March.

Jordan Water Is Liquid Dynamite

By ELIAV SIMON

TEL AVIV (UPI)—The waters of the Jordan are liquid dynamite in the bitter enmity between Arab and Jew.

The reason is that the Jordan waters hold the key to Israel's very existence. By using its water resources only at the current rate, Israel could hardly expect to survive.

The Arab states know that if they can block the Jordan River plan, they have a stranglehold on Israel's future.

But to Israel, the plan is simplicity itself. It wants the Negev to bloom; this vast rugged desert accounts for roughly half the total area of the country. The desert is barren only for lack of water.

But the only source of water is the River Jordan. And Israel does not own the Jordan.

Three south-flowing rivers—one rising in Lebanon, one in Syria and one in Israel—unite in Israel to form the Jordan.

Studies have determined that 77 per cent of the Jordan River's flow originates in Arab territory, 23 per cent in Israeli territory.

Nearly a dozen programs have been drawn up to use the river's water and divide it between Arab and Jew. All showed that such a division was technically possible. But politically, international agreement has been out of the question.

Israel's plan calls for moving 320 million cubic meters of water annually half the length of Israel, from Lake Tiberias to the northern Negev.

Water will be pumped from the lake, about 700 feet below sea level, into an open canal about 25 miles long. Two pumping stations will raise it to a height of 1,200 feet above sea level. Then a giant concrete pipe 108 inches in diameter will carry the water by gravity the remaining 65 miles.

The Arabs object that the Israeli plan violates the armistice agreement and a U.N. Security Council resolution, that it violates legal rights of other Jordan-sharing states, that it would make the Jordan south of the diversion too salty for irrigation, that settlement of the Negev would constitute a threat to the Arab world.

This is where the matter now stands.

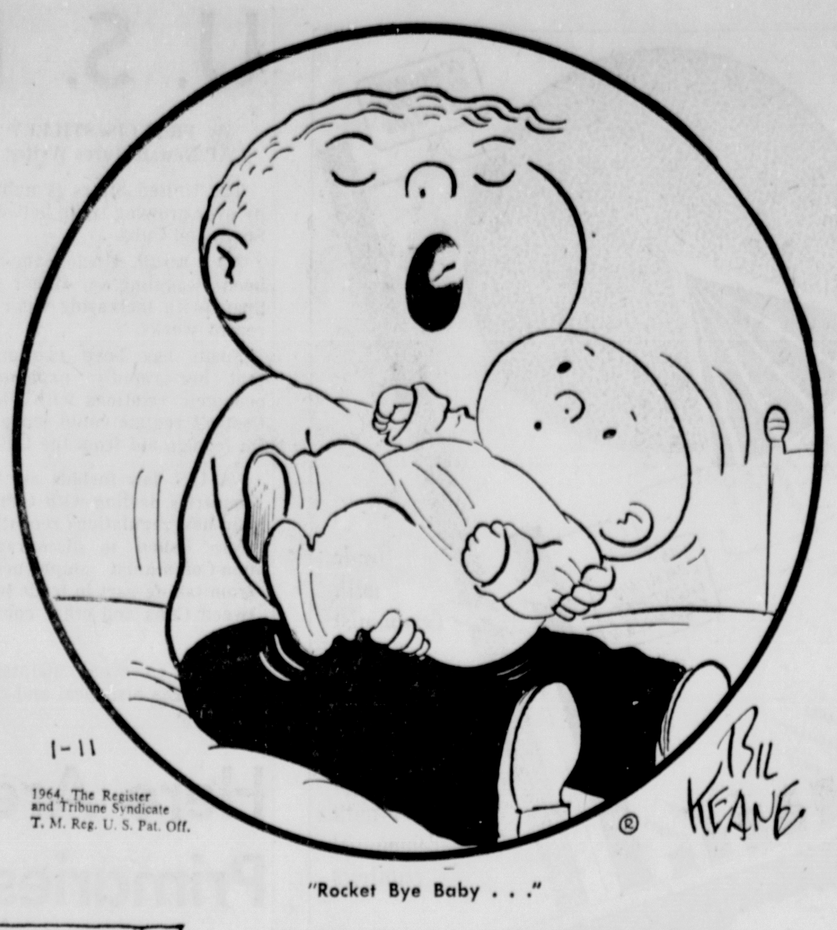

TROUBLE SPOT — Once again the Middle East resounds with top-level diplomacy and threats of war over the water of the River Jordan. This map locates areas concerned.

Today is Saturday, Jan. 11 the 11th day of 1964 with 355 to follow.

The moon is approaching a new phase. The morning star is Mercury. The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1785, the Continental Congress met in New York City.

In 1861, Alabama seceded from the Union.

In 1935, Amelia Earhart took off from Hawaii for the U. S. in an attempt to become the first woman to make a solo flight across the Pacific.

In 1963, 500 Soviet troops were removed from Cuba.

A thought for the day — Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall said: "What this country needs is a good five cent cigar."

Don't Be Too Quick Or Positive With Answer To This Question

Would you rather have an ace or a queen? Don't be too quick or too positive with your answer.

You might regret having the ace, as South did in the hand shown today.

Opening lead — ♡ J

South won the opening heart lead, drew three rounds of trumps and joyfully threw the losing diamond on the king of hearts.

DIAMOND TRICK

Now he wouldn't have to lose a diamond trick!

Unfortunately, the clubs broke badly, and South had to lose two club tricks. Down one.

Of course you've noticed that South made the wrong discard on dummy's king of hearts.

DISCARD CLUB

He should discard a club and try the diamond finesse.

Even though the diamond finesse loses, South can clear the ace and king of diamonds and return to dummy to discard a second club on the jack of diamonds.

South wins five spades, two hearts, three diamonds and two clubs—enough tricks for his slam contract.

SUBSTITUTE QUEEN

Give South K-Q-10 of diamonds instead of A-K-10 (in other words, substitute the queen for the ace of diamonds), and he cannot go wrong.

He must automatically discard a club on dummy's king of hearts and develop the diamonds for a second club discard.

The ace of diamonds was an optical illusion that cost South his small slam in spades.

QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ J 9 7 5 2
♥ J 9 6
♦ K 9 7
♣ 8 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

The hand will probably play as well at two of a major as at one notrump. The trump contract is often far safer.

QUESTION

Dealer bids one club, your partner doubles, and the next player bids two clubs.

You hold:

♠ Q 10 4
♥ Q 10 9 8 3
♦ A Q 2
♣ J 5

What do you say?

Answer: Bid three hearts.

This jump response is highly invitational, but not forcing. If your partner has minimum values for his takeout double he can pass and you should make your contract.

Remember the day you gave her a bike?

Remember how she looked... standing high between the pedals and the sky? Even the sun shone special that day, to go with her smile. And you knew you'd never bought anything quite so wonderful.

It was a treasure, not just a bike. And you couldn't help feeling just a little proud of yourself, too...for using I-J Classified ads to help you buy it. (They always said you were practical).

Remember how you ransacked the attic...sold that old sports equipment, a chair, and other things you no longer needed? A quick-acting Classified ad in the Independent-Journal turned a little magic for you...brought in the money that brought home the bike.

Ever so many people in Marin use I-J Classified for just that ...selling things they don't need to buy things they want. Quickly, easily, at low cost. Just a matter of thinking about it...

Marin Rally Tops Redwood, 48-47

Marin Catholic High School's basketball team, trailing throughout the game, used a fourth quarter rally to nip Redwood High School's cagers, 48-47, last night in the opening of Marin Athletic League action. The game was at Redwood.

Redwood jumped to a 17-13 lead after the first quarter and led 25-21 at halftime. The lead was reduced to two points after three quarters, 34-32.

But in the final period the Wildcats of Marin Catholic outscored the Giants 16-13 to post the one-point victory. Leading Marin's attack in the final period was Tom Soden who tallied 12 of his team's 16 points.

Hillard Witt, Redwood's leading rebounder of the night with 18 off the boards, had a free throw attempt with only one second remaining in the game, but he missed the shot which would have tied up the game.

The last time these two teams met, only one point separated the winner from the loser, but that time Redwood won. It was in the MAL tournament last month when Redwood edged the Wildcats 51-50 after four overtime periods.

The statistics showed the game was as close as any game could be. Both teams made 16 field goals, but the one-point edge in favor of Marin Catholic was at the free throw line, 16-15. The Wildcats made 16 out of 23 free tosses and Redwood made 15 out of 21.

Guard Bob Redding was the leading scorer for the Marin quint, hitting 16 points on seven field goals and two charity tosses. Teammate Tom Soden, a forward, had five buckets and five free throws for 15 points.

Forward Dave Auerbach topped the scoring for the Giants with 14 points on five field goals and four free throws. Witt followed with 12 points on three baskets and six free shots.

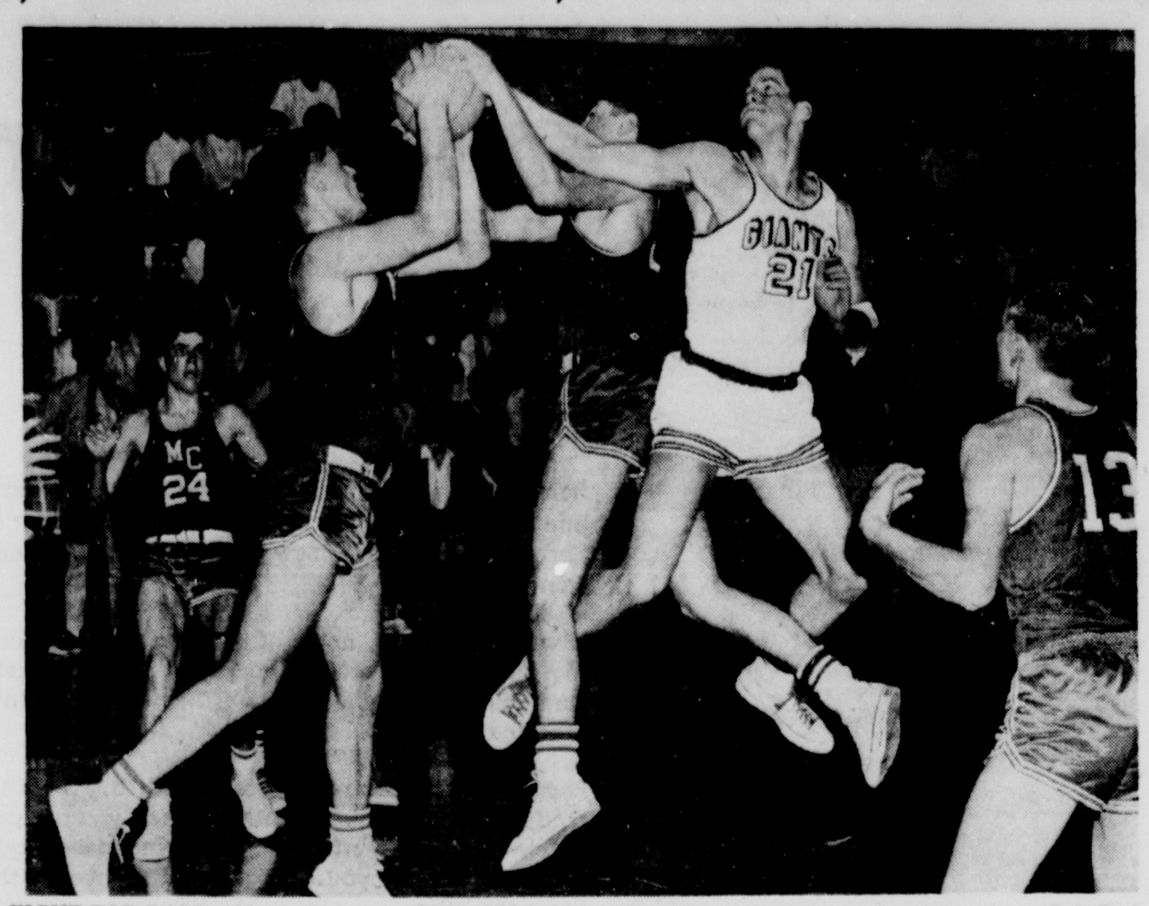

Marin Catholic's Class B team downed the Redwood Bees, 41-37, although Redwood's Russell Smith accounted for 18 points. Marin Catholic also won the junior varsity game against Redwood, 36-25. Lone Redwood team to win for the day was the frosh which downed the Marin team 35-27. Redwood freshman Kevin Wilson led the scoring with 15.

Varsity individual scoring:

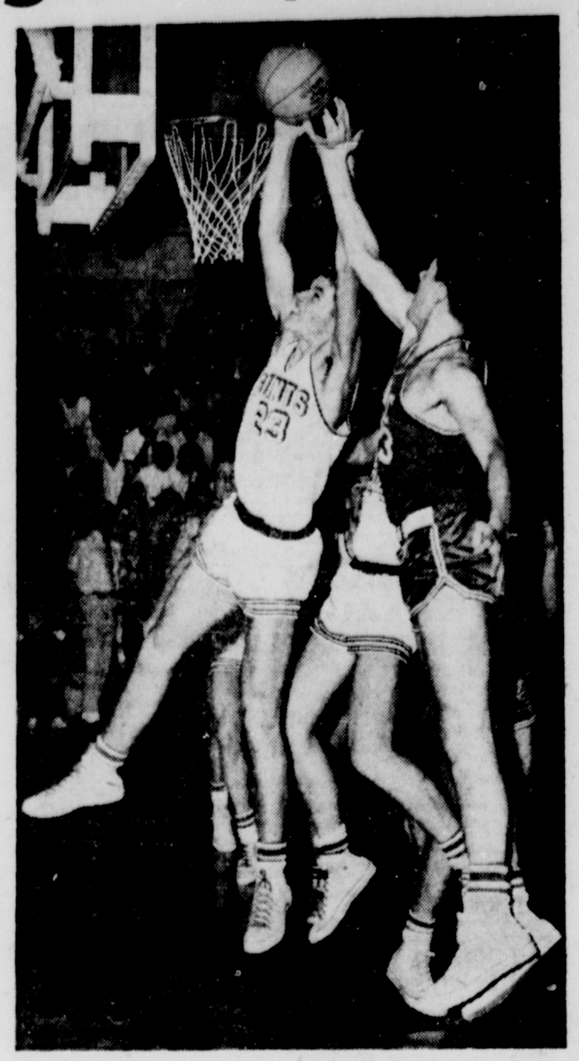

Marin Catholic	13	8	11	16—48
Redwood	17	8	9	13—47

Marin Catholic scorers: Tom Soden, 5-5—15; Phil Ferris, 2-2-6; Mike Ferrua, 0-4—4; Bruce Makinson, 2-3—7; Bob Redding, 7-2—16. Totals 16-16—48.

Redwood scorers: Larry Herst, 3-3—9; Bob Piro, 3-0—6; Dave Auerbach, 5-4—14; Hillard Witt, 3-6—12; Tom Bly, 1-1—3; Jim Halm, 1-1—3. Totals 16-15—47.

FOUL CALLED—Redwood's Hillard Witt (white jersey) tries for a tip-in in the fourth quarter last night over the guard of Marin Catholic's Tom Soden. A foul was called on the play and Witt made both free throws.

Wilkinson Quits Coaching

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Bud Wilkinson, widely rumored as a possible candidate for U.S. Senate, resigned today as head football coach at the University of Oklahoma, but retained the post of athletic director.

Wilkinson, who said he reached the decision "with reluctance," said he felt he should resign in the best interests of the school's athletic program.

Wilkinson said he had not decided whether he would run for the Senate but admitted that he was considering it. The 47-year-old coach, most successful in college circles today, said increased speculation had prompted his announcement.

He said his resignation as coach was not motivated by politics.

"The point has been reached where we can't keep the situation in a state of flux," Wilkinson said. "My contract for about 10 years now has said that I could resign as football coach and retain my position as athletic director. I think it's best I resign as football coach at this time. Any other course would lead to erosion of the football team."

The school's board of regents voted unanimously to accept the resignation and went into executive session to choose a successor.

Wilkinson, whose football teams during the 1950s were among the nation's best and included three national champions, closed his remarkable career at Oklahoma with 139 regular season victories, 27 defeats and 4 ties. He won six of eight bowl games.

SANTA ANITA FACES FULL SHUTDOWN

ARCADIA (UPI)—A full scale shutdown faced Santa Anita Park racetrack today, barring a break in deadlocked labor negotiations.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown has requested resumption of talks between park officials and union representatives. He entered the dispute after peace discussions collapsed for the second time this week.

The dispute began Jan. 6, when the Building Service Employees International Union established picket lines. Santa Anita opened its 55-day meeting last Dec. 26.

The track announced that, for the first time, it will stop posting entries today. A number of stables were planning to leave the track if racing did not resume quickly, and if they do there will be no chance to continue the meeting, said General Manager Fred H. Ryan.

When the talks broke down again yesterday, W. J. Bassett, executive secretary of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor said, "there's no use trying any more. It's all through."

In La Jolla, Calif., Bert Thompson, managing director of the Jockeys Guild of America, said he planned to meet Santa Anita officials today in an effort to settle the strike.

The negotiations deadlocked over fringe benefits, including a health plan for pensioned workers. The track says paying the benefits could put Santa Anita and other California tracks out of business.

Bulldog Cagers Romp Past Terra Lindans

San Rafael High School's Bulldogs opened their bid for the title of the Marin Athletic League basketball race last night with a 59-44 triumph over Terra Linda in the San Rafael High School gym.

The game was all San Rafael until the final quarter when the Trojans scored 23 points against the Bulldog reserves.

Rod Monti, San Rafael's high scoring forward, topped the point-making column for the winners with 12 points. Center John MacKinnon followed with eight. San Rafael used the same combination in the rebounding department, Monti pulling down 11 and MacKinnon snagging 9. Eleven of the 14 San Rafael cagers who played figured in the scoring.

Terra Linda was led in the scoring column by Bill Brody with 15 points and Don Knotts with 12. Brody had a hot night, cashing in on five of six field goal attempts.

The Bulldogs led in rebounding, 47-23.

San Rafael also won the B game from Terra Linda, 50-40. Bill Pandiani of San Rafael topped the scoring for the night with 14 points.

Behind the 20 points of Joe Cunningham, San Rafael won the junior varsity game against Terra Linda, 54-35.

Individual scoring for the varsity game:

Terra Linda	7	6	8	23—44
San Rafael	14	16	16	13—59

Terra Linda scorers: Bill Brody, 5-5—15; Don Knotts, 2-8—12; Kraig Kilby, 3-1—7; Dick Clark, 2-1—5; Bob Cooney, 2-1—5. Totals 14-16—44.

San Rafael scorers: Rod Monti, 6-0—12; John MacKinnon, 4-0—8; Steve Spurling, 3-1—7; Wade Roberts 2-3—7; Bob Rossi, 2-0—4; Bob Rich, 2-0—4; Rich Ahern, 2-0—4; Jim Schmidt, 2-0—4; Ken Erdman, 1-1—3; Tony Glynn, 1-1—3; Jim Kilgore, 1-1—3. Totals: 26-7-59.

Tamites Defeat Drake As Bell And Williams Sparkle

Tamalpais High School's basketballers started defense of their Marin Athletic League cage title last night with a 59-44 victory over Drake's Pirates in the Drake gym.

It was a story of Tam dominating the boards as the Indians consistently outrebounded the Pirates. Center Tami Bell and forward Ellis Williams were doing most of the rebound work for Tam.

And it was Williams who did most of the scoring for Tam, the returning starter dumping 15 points through the basket. He was followed by teammate Rich Olson with 13 points. Lorry Galassi topped the scoring for Drake with 16 points.

Tam, using a zone defense, forced Drake to do most of its shooting from outside. Larry Stein, Drake junior, scored eight of his total points in the final quarter.

Drake made 14 out of 19 free throws and Tam 19 out of 28.

The Pirates won the Class B game over Tam, 39-19, as Duke Iverson led the Drake attack with 20 points.

Individual scoring for the varsity game:

Tamalpais	12	17	13	17—59
Drake	10	9	7	18—44

Tamalpais scorers: Ellis Williams, 6-3—15; Cedric Collett, 1-4—6; Chris Schuepbach, 1-0—2; Tami Bell, 0-3—3; Rich Olson, 6-1—13; Robin Prosch, 2-2—6; Alan Polanshek, 2-1—5; Larry Gray, 2-5—9. Totals 20-19—59.

Drake scorers: Bob Brackett, 3-4—10; Dennis Hannigan, 1-2—4; Lorry Galassi, 5-6—16; Larry Stein, 4-1—9; Rick Henika, 2-1—5. Totals 15-14—44.

Amazing Is Word For San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Open golf tournament clearly may be viewed with consternation, a measure of amazement and embarrassment, depending upon the viewer.

It may not be unprecedented but few people close to professional golf can recall when a round spilled over to the next day, two days in succession, with 30 players one day, and 42 the next, awaiting a second day to finish the round of the day before.

If the pattern continues, one sage observer noted with tongue in cheek, this may be the only 72-hole tournament that was played in five days.

This was the picture today as play was resumed at the par 35-35-70 Rancho Bernardo Country Club course. Official, the scoreboard read:

Art Wall, Jr.	71-65-136
Bruce Crampton	71-66-137
George Archer	71-66-137
Ray Floyd	73-65-138

But all the players were not in—42, to be exact.

Included was Bob Rosburg. He had a first round 66 and was one under with six holes to go.

There also were National Open champion Julius Boros, a first round 67 and one over with four holes to play; Arnold Palmer, a 73 Thursday, one under with two to go; British Open champion Bob Charles, 69, even with two holes to play, and Tony Lema, 67 and even par after 13 holes.

Wall closed out his round with four straight birdies yesterday, shooting a brilliant 34-31 for his 65, a course record.

And 21-year-old Floyd, from St. Andrews, Ill., playing in the same threesome with Wall, matched his round with 33-32-65 for 138.

Australia's Bruce Crampton, playing just behind the Wall group, holed out a 171-yard, six-iron shot for an eagle two on the 18th, to give the gallery a huge charge. The yardage was attested by the handsome Aussie himself. He paced it off.

San Diego's sponsors and their counterparts on the winter circuit have always had their problems. This one is unique.

Yes, some of the players were vexed, the golfing public was befuddled and the sponsors of the tournament are embarrassed.

Frozen greens and falling temperatures in the night hours are the cause. Friday play began two hours behind schedule. It was one hour late Thursday. Same cause—icy greens.

It doesn't matter that by midmorning the sun is shining, and has kept on beaming through the day.

Lucky Golf Tickets On Sale Here

Advance season tickets for the 1964 Lucky International Open golf tournament, Jan. 20 through 26, are for sale in Marin County at a saving of 50 per cent over the daily gate prices, according to Mrs. S. C. Sargent, Marin County chairman for the tournament.

Tickets may be purchased at the office of the Marin County Society for Crippled Children and Adults at 629 Mission Avenue, San Rafael. The advance season ticket book which sells for $10 is equivalent to $20 at the gate, and the special book at $25 represents a saving of $15 over gate prices, Mrs. Sargent said.

Proceeds of the tourney, to be held at Harding Park in San Francisco, will be donated to the Bay Area Societies for Crippled Children.

Ticket books may be purchased at the society office, or from Mrs. Fred Apostoli in Larkspur, Mrs. T. N. Foris in Mill Valley, Mrs. A. J. Brinckerhoff in Novato, and Mrs. Frank Keaton and Mrs. Sargent, both of San Rafael.

Portable TV To Assist Golfers

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Golfers at next week's Crosby tournament on the Monterey Peninsula will be able to check their swings on a portable television recorder before teeing off, according to an electronics firm here.

The Precision Instrument Co., maker of recorders, said yesterday that golfers can hit a few balls in front of the set and then view themselves on a play back a few seconds later.

The instrument is used also in coaching, industry and education.

Jack Hart To Stay As Cal Grid Aide

BERKELEY (UPI) — Jack Hart will remain at the University of California as an assistant football coach.

Hart's appointment was announced in the name of new Bear head coach Ray Willsey yesterday. Both Hart and Willsey are former University of California backfield stars.

Giants Sign Jim Duffalo, Cap Peterson

Relief pitcher Jim Duffalo and utility man Charley Peterson have returned signed contracts to the San Francisco Giants, it was announced yesterday.

Duffalo posted a 4-2 record last year with a 2.88 earned run average.

Peterson, a former bonus baby who can play infield or outfield, divided his time last year between the Giants and their Pacific Coast League Tacoma farm team. He hit .259 in 22 games with the Giants and .268 in 85 games with Tacoma.

Fairfax Baseballers See Action Tomorrow

DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage baseball team will play the Granada Club of San Francisco tomorrow in a Triple-A Continental Winter League game at San Anselmo's Memorial Park, 1 p.m.

Either Steve Miller or Scott Davi will draw the starting pitching assignment for the garagemen.

Novato '5' Loses Practice Game

Novato High's varsity basketball team lost a practice game to Washington High of San Francisco, 48-45, yesterday on the Novato Hornets' floor.

Nick Willard led the Hornets scoring with 18 points.

Novato will open its Marin Athletic League schedule next Tuesday when it hosts San Rafael at 4 o'clock. Novato drew a bye for yesterday's league-opening round.

Marin Star Mentioned On All-American

Bob Sparrow, quarterback on the College of Marin football team last year, was given honorable mention on the 10th annual Los Angeles Times-Jaycee Index All-American junior college team, it was announced.

Sparrow passed for 14 touchdowns in nine games and led the Mariners' team in total offense. He was selected to the All-Golden Valley Conference first team after conclusion of the 1963 season.

Marin College Opens Defense Of Cage Title Tonight

NECK INJURY—Ron O'Connell, starting College of Marin guard, goes in the air for a rebound in the Tars' game with Foothill College last week. O'Connell, nursing a muscle spasm in his neck, was released from the hospital yesterday and will miss the Tars' opening league game tonight in Marysville. (Al Sims photo)

College of Marin's basketball team will start play in the Golden Valley Conference tonight when the Tars travel to Marysville to battle the Yuba College 49ers at 8 o'clock.

The Tars, holders of a five-win, nine-loss practice game record this year, will be defending their co-championship title of last year. Tied with the Tars for first place last season was Shasta, the teams with 10-2 records.

And for basketball coach Cal Riemcke, championships are not an uncommon thing. In the six years that Cal has been coaching College of Marin cage teams, the Tars have won the title five times. There's nothing like success, especially in the coaching business.

Four of College of Marin's five victories this year were during tournament competition. The Tars won two of three games for the runner-up trophy in the Golden Valley Conference Tournament, and then won two of three in the Coast Conference tourney in Salinas for the consolation trophy.

Ron O'Connell, one of the starting guards for the Tars this year, will miss the opening game because of a muscle spasm in his neck. He had been resting in San Rafael General Hospital since Wednesday and was released yesterday. He is expected to be back in the lineup next week.

His neck injury was not suffered during basketball, but instead came about during classes at school. Wednesday, as he was walking out of a class, he suffered pains and was sent to the hospital.

O'Connell, a 5-11 freshman from Marin Catholic, is described by Riemcke as a "really good competitor who sparks the team." Taking his place in the starting lineup tonight will be either Bruce Wold (5-7), a freshman from San Rafael High, or Steve Anderson (6-0), a sophomore from Drake High School.

The other starting guard is Jay Johnson (6-11), a freshman from Redwood High School, where he won All-Northern California prep honors in 1962. According to Riemcke, Jay is doing a great job in setting up the Tar offense.

Starting center is Bill Wallace (6-5), a sophomore from last year's Tar team. Wallace, when a senior at San Rafael High, didn't make the varsity team, but has improved so much since then he is a valuable man on the Mariner team. Needless to say, Riemcke calls Wallace "the most improved member of the team."

One of the starting forward berths is manned by Brad Busch (6-1), a sophomore who joined the Tars at mid-year in the '63 season. He's a dead-eye shooter termed by Riemcke as the best all-around player because of his point-making and rebounding ability.

The other forward on the starting five is Bill Hodgson (6-3), sophomore returning letterman. Hodgson did his prep playing at San Rafael High School.

Other returning players on the Tars team this year are forward Pete Bardea (6-4), a sophomore from Tamalpais; Bob Nehls (6-5), sophomore forward from Albany High School, and soph center Rich Abbott (6-4) from Tam.

Other reserves on the Mariners' team are forwards Jim Delton (6-1) from Terra Linda, Bruce Ketron (6-3) from Drake and Paul Gockel (6-0) from Marin Catholic, and guards Jeff Chapman (6-0) from Terra Linda, Hap Curley (6-0) from Drake, and Pat Glynn (5-10), who played prep ball last year at Manchester, Iowa, where he was third team All-State.

On the practice game slate, Busch is the leading scorer for the Tars with 275 points in 14 games for a 19.6 average per game. Jay Johnson follows with 255 points in 13 games for an identical 19.6 average and O'Connell has scored 222 points in 14 games for a 15.8 average.

Because of the lack of height of the Tars, Riemcke has been stressing ball control and team play as the weapons of victory. "We are going after a balanced scoring punch," he adds.

"The practice games pointed up our weak spots and we have corrected them. We have come up with a pretty solid lineup," said Riemcke. "We will probably play as close to our potential as possible."

Toughest competition in the league for Marin is expected from Santa Rosa. The Tars will face the Bear Cubs of Santa Rosa in the Mariners' home opener next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the Redwood gym.

The 16-man squad for the Tars is one of the largest teams Riemcke has ever had a Marin. At one time in the season last year the team dwindled down to eight members.

All in all, 1964 should be another successful season for Riemcke and his cagers. With the talent of the team, the Tars may well make it another championship year.

COAST COLLEGES

Bruins, Stanford, Cal, USF Triumph

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The fast-breaking UCLA Bruins, the No. 1 basketball team in the nation, maintained their Big Six conference lead last night with a 79-59 victory over Southern California.

The Trojans, playing a control type game, managed to hold the usually high scoring Bruins to 29 points in the first half. But UCLA came roaring back after intermission with 50 points, sparked by Walt Hazzard and Jack Hirsch.

Hazzard was the high scorer of the game with 21 points.

Undefeated UCLA is now 3-0 in conference play.

California and Stanford follow, each with 2-1 conference record for season.

Stanford, presenting a balanced attack for almost the first time this year, rolled to a 75-52 victory over Washington in Palo Alto last night.

The Indians rallied behind the standout first-half performances by Clayton Raaka and Kent Hinckley. In the second half, Stanford's Hollis Moore broke loose for 14 points for a game total of 18, making him the high scorer of the game. Scoring honors were well distributed and the Indians' usually high scoring Tom Dose picked up only 12 points.

The defeat dropped Washington's league record to 1-2, same as USC's.

TEAM EFFORT

California turned in an outstanding team effort on its home court, defeating Washington State 72-64. Four members of the Bear squad scored in double figures, led by Camden Wall with 21 points.

WSU's Ted Werner, a 6-foot-9 junior, led the scoring with 24 points, but the Bears never were headed after taking a lead early in the first half. WSU trails the league with a 0-3 record.

USF, leader of the West Coast Athletic Conference, took care of University of Pacific, 75-64, as Eddie Thomas meshed 21 and Dave Lee 17. But the San Jose State Spartans stunned Loyola, 64-47, at Los Angeles in their conference opener as mammoth Harry Edwards tallied 13. The soph-loaded Spartans are 9-3 this season and could give the favored Dons a real run for their money. Santa Barbara edged Pepperdine, 60-58, in more WCAC action.

USF hosts St. Mary's tonight, while San Jose calls on Pepperdine.

Chamberlain Stars As Warriors Romp

Wilt Chamberlain had a chance at a 75-point evening yesterday and blew it.

He couldn't have made his coach, Alex Hannum, any happier. And Wilt isn't feeling too bad, either.

He scored 50 as the San Francisco Warriors romped to a 114-89 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers, leaders of the Western Division of the National Basketball Assn., last night at the Cow Palace before 4,697 fans.

It was the third straight win for the Warriors, including a victory over Eastern Division pacemaker Boston, and represents the longest Warrior win streak this season. Also, it was the third straight game in which the opposition has scored less than 100 points.

Chamberlain had 37 points by halftime. So did the Lakers. The score was 66-37.

"In the third period, Chamberlain started passing off to obviously open men who shot and scored," said Hannum after the game.

Hannum has been trying to get the Warriors less dependent on Chamberlain so the big center can pay more attention to defense and rebounding.

"Despite how it looked to the fans, I changed nothing in our offense during halftime," said Hannum, in explaining why Chamberlain took only three shots in the third quarter. "It was all Wilt's doings."

Some of Wilt's doings occurred in the second quarter when the Warriors rolled up 34 points to the Lakers' 9. In that 12-minute stretch, the Lakers shot 23 times and made four, and ended with 37 for 101 attempts.

"It was just one of those nights," lamented Laker Coach Fred Schaus. "We had a bad night shooting, but give them credit. They outplayed us on the boards and on defense and deserved it."

Elgin Baylor and Jerry West each scored 21 points in pacing the Lakers.

West Favored Over East In Pro Grid Bowl; Game On TV

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The favored West All-Stars will aim for victory tomorrow afternoon in the 14th annual Pro Bowl and thereby complete a sweep of 1963 post-season honors for the Western Division of the National Football League.

West Coach George Halas directed his Chicago Bears to the NFL championship and the Green Bay Packers won the runner-up bowl, and as Halas points out, a win in the Memorial Coliseum tomorrow would give the West a "clean sweep."

A crowd of about 60,000 was expected to pour into the massive Coliseum for the nationally-televised (ABC) game. Kickoff is 1 p.m. pst.

Some 50,000 general admission seats go on sale tomorrow morning and the place should be swarming with kids. One adult purchasing a general admission ticket can get five youngsters under 13 years of age in free.

The starting quarterbacks are Charley Johnson of the St. Louis Cardinals for the East and veteran Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts for the West.

The city of Baltimore is hardly in the western part of the United States and St. Louis is much closer to being a part of the "West," but the loyalties of the two signal-callers are not likely to be confused.

East Coach Allie Sherman of the New York Giants has Washington Redskin Norman Snead ready to relieve Johnson. Likewise, Halas has his own Bill Wade ready to step into the second quarter of action to spell Unitas.

Sherman has had to make offensive plans without his New York Giant ace, Y. A. Tittle, whose knee, injured in the NFL championship game, kept him from the pro bowl.

Earlier this week, flanker Buddy Dial twisted his knee in practice and was sent home, but Sherman was able to add eager Frank Gifford, a money player of long standing, to the squad.

The two squads held final light workouts today.

Rajkovich Bowls 280 At Greenbrae

John Rajkovich headed the action for the past week at Greenbrae Lanes with a big 280 game during the Northern California Bowling Proprietors Assn. team tournament.

Rajkovich, a 177 average bowler, will receive a century award from the American Bowling Congress for bowling more than 100 pins over his average. He had 11 out of 12 possible strikes, getting a spare in the second frame.

In the series scores, Don Conner topped the list with a 629 in the 770 Limited Handicap League. He was followed by Bob Sharp with a 621 in the Mixed Mates League.

Other high individual games during the week's league action were rolled by Walt Carter, 257; Hal Hocken, 256, Bill Rosa, 247; Howard Agar, 244; Ray Brusati, 243, and Rajkovich with a 241, this one in the Woodcutters League.

Charlotte Warcup topped the women's scores with a 581 series topped by a 231 game, in the Marin County Women's Bowling Assn. tourney, both highs for the week. Runner-up honors went to Lil Scotto, 226-557 in the Ladies 600 Scratch League.

The junior bowlers were topped by Mark Colombo with a 221 in the Saturday Junior Trio Mixed League.

Ten-year-old David Crowhurst bowled like a man as he tossed a 181 game to highlight other junior action.

The week's top scores:

Solo-Flighters — Ruth Kenney 193-514; Cappy Painter 203-513.

Corinthian Yacht Club Will Hold Fourth Regatta

The Corinthian Yacht Club of Tiburon will hold the fourth race of its five-race Midwinter Regatta sailing series tomorrow with the first start scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Approximately 150 sailors will compete in the event. Start will be from the Corinthian clubhouse on Racoon Strait.

Courses will range from 5.3 to 8.1 miles and will be selected just before the warning gun. Skippers will be notified of their routes five minutes before each start by visual signal from Corinthian's yard-arm.

COLLEGE NEEDS NAME FOR NEW P.E. BUILDING

College of Marin is looking for a name for its new physical education complex, now under construction, it was announced today.

Persons who have suggestions are requested to submit them in writing to Harry J. Pieper, director of athletics at the college, before Jan. 31.

A screening committee, consisting of Pieper; Paul Clymer, college vice president; William B. Winkle, president of the COM Alumni Assn., and David Lehman, president-elect of the student body, will go over all the suggestions and submit names to the college board of trustees at the Feb. 13 board meeting.

Builders '9' Play In Concord Tomorrow

The Billings-Hutchison Builders of Marin will travel to Concord tomorrow to take on the Concord Rebels at 1 p.m.

Tied for third place in the Alameda Winter League, the Builders will send either Ron Cole or Bob DeRosa to the mound.

Ramos Scores Easy Victory In TV Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Slugging Sugar Ramos, the world featherweight champion, boosted his win streak to 46 by pounding out a unanimous 10-round decision over Argentina's Vicente Derado in a lightweight bout at the Olympic Auditorium.

Ramos, a Cuban now living in Mexico City, opened a cut over Derado's left eye in the second round and slowed him down with two punishing rights in the fourth.

Officials scored the nationally televised bout, 6-5, 7-4 and 6-2 in favor of Ramos.

Ramos is undefeated in his pro career and hopes to meet Ortiz.

READY FOR WORSHIP

Members of the First Missionary Baptist Church of Marin City will hold their first service in their new building at 3 p.m. Jan. 19. Rev. N. Reason of the First Union Baptist Church, San Francisco, will be the speaker. Rev. J. P. Henry, pastor of the Marin City Church, said a $10,000 drive is still in progress to raise the final payments on the new building.

Baptists Open Evangelical Meeting At Marin Seminary

A two-day Baptist conference, to be held both in Marin and in Richmond, will open Thursday at the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry.

It will include an integrated worship service of National (Negro) Baptists and Southern Baptists in the Richmond Memorial Auditorium Friday.

Sponsored by the California Southern Baptist General Convention, it is the 17th annual Evangelical Conference in California

According to Dr. Wade Armstrong, state director of evangelism for Southern Baptists, evangelism and church outreach in the state will be the emphasis of the conference.

Opening sessions will begin at 9:30 a.m., Thursday, in the Broadus Chapel at the seminary. A Baptist Jubilee Advance luncheon will be held in the seminary cafeteria Thursday with emphasis on missionary advance in California and throughout the world.

The first night session of the Evangelistic Conference begins at 7:00 P.M., Thursday, at the Memorial Auditorium in Richmond. A 300 voice choir will sing under the direction of Dr. Carlyle Bennett, professor of church music at Golden Gate Seminary.

Dr. K. Owen White, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and pastor of the First Baptist Church, Houston, Texas, will be featured speaker Thursday. Rev. Joseph Underwood, coordinator for church development and evangelism of the Foreign Mission Board, will speak in two sessions on world evangelism.

Speaker throughout the conference will be Dr. Charles B. Howard, Bible professor at Campbell Baptist College in North Carolina. Dr. Jack Stanton, a representative of the Division of Evangelism of the Home Mission Board, is scheduled to preach on "Personal Witnessing."

Dr. David R. Grant, pastor of the Broadmoor Baptist Church, Jackson, Miss., is to speak on "The Pastor's Place in Evangelism." Mr. H. C. Abbott, a Baptist layman from Louisiana and owner of a chain of clothing stores in Texas and Louisiana, will speak on "The Layman's Part in Evangelism."

A joint Baptist Evangelistic Conference at the Richmond Memorial Auditorium Friday evening is expected to attract over 3,000 people from National and Southern Baptist Churches throughout Northern California.

Church Laymen Show Power With 'Life Line' Service

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Can a city church reach out and serve the real human needs of those who are lonely, old, sick, poor and despairing?

It can. A Methodist congregation in Sydney, Australia, has demonstrated how it can be done through a remarkable venture called "Life Line."

It deserves the attention of every American church which is seeking ways to lift Christianity out of the rut of tired pious words and make it come alive with the compassionate, self-giving love that radiated from its founder.

Life Line is a telephone number which anyone in Sydney may call for help at any hour of the day or night.

The calls have been pouring in ever since the Life Line center was opened last March at the Central Methodist Mission, a big downtown church. The center is manned by lay volunteers, working four shifts for each 24 hours. Its switchboard number is listed on the emergency page of the telephone directory, along with fire, police and ambulance services.

Life Line gets some calls from people who are on the brink of committing suicide. To answer these calls, a "trouble team" is always standing by, ready to hurry anywhere in the city in a car equipped with two-way radio.

But Life Line is not just an anti-suicide agency. If it were, it would not be anything special, for such services have long existed in several American cities.

Like Jesus Christ, Life Line responds to the whole gamut of human needs—from the need for bread to the need for faith.

With a small staff of full-time workers, supplemented by a large corps of volunteers, it stands ready to provide any kind of help that a human being in trouble may seek.

By calling Life Line, a poor family can obtain food or clothing . . . an unemployed man can find assistance in getting a job . . . a squabbling couple can get free marriage counseling . . . a pregnant girl can be guided into a suitable home for unwed mothers . . . a lonely old person can meet a friend . . . a puzzled parent can receive expert psychiatric advice on the handling of a delinquent child . . . a college student experiencing a crisis of religious doubt can have the Bible explained to him in adult terms . . . an alcoholic can be introduced to the AA concept of group therapy . . . you name the need, and if Life Line cannot meet it itself, it will locate a Christian layman somewhere who can and will.

Life Line's services are available to anyone who telephones the center. More than half of the calls come from people who have no connection with any church. Life Line does not inflict sermons on them as the price of its help. But the people who operate the center are all convinced Christians. And the silent testimony of their service to man has proved to be the most effective kind of evangelism.

Perhaps the most significant thing about Life Line is that it is predominantly a layman's enterprise. Rev. Alan Walker, director of the Central Methodist Mission, underscored this aspect in a report on the project published by the Christian Century Magazine.

"Much has been written about the functions of the laity in the total ministry of the church," said Walker. "But usually little is said of how, in practical terms, the lay ministry can be fulfilled.

"In Life Line, we have found a way . . . we are seeing a little of what can happen when the laity, the church's 'sleeping giant,' awakes."

NEW CURATE — Rev. G. Bruce Tilden, a graduate of the Church Divinity School of the Pacific, has come to St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, as curate. He and his wife will live at 255 Canal Street.

Peace Lutheran Board Installed

Alfred Bangert has been installed as new president of the board of the Peace Lutheran Church in Mill Valley.

He and other new officers were installed by Rev. Harold G. Johnson in evening services last Sunday.

Others taking office were David Erickson, secretary; Arthur Lind, treasurer; Marion Koehn, financial secretary; Marvin Kine, Bert Theide, Warren Ringen, Charles Hegg, James Kerrigan, board of elders; Vernon Schwartz, Steven Cope, Leland Rosevear, trustees, and Russell Troup, Lannie Berry and Arthur Strassburger, board of education.

Film On Evolution Due At Hub Church

"Monkey Business," a film described as "an honest look at evolution," will be shown at 7:30 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church, San Anselmo.

The film shows how the questions of two students lead them to a invigorating respect for both science and the Bible. The program is sponsored by the Greater Marin Youth For Christ.

Mason Elected Mission Warden In Inverness

John S. Mason is the newly elected warden of St. Columba's Episcopal Church, Inverness.

He succeeds Ray Randall whose term expired. Mason was elected at an organizational meeting of the bishop's committee after the church's annual meeting Jan. 3. He and Cecil R. Asman were elected to the bishop's committee.

Randall was named delegate to the convention of the diocese and Walter Kantala was named alternate. Miss Phyllis C. Edgell was named delegate to the deanery convention and Mrs. Robert Bruckman was named alternate.

Lectures On Family Set At Air Force Base

A series of three lectures on "Today's Family in a Changing World" has been scheduled at Chapel One Annex at Hamilton Air Force Base Jan. 20, 27 and Feb. 3.

Mrs. Mary K. Jones, assistant for program in the Episcopal Diocese of California, will give the lectures. Topics of the three lectures in the order they will be given are: "Parent Dilemma," "Parents and Discipline" and "Family Values." All talks begin at 7:30 p.m.

NEW PRE-CANA MEET STARTS IN GREENBRAE

The first in a series of Pre-Cana Conferences for engaged and newly married couples will be held at 1:15 p.m., Jan. 19, at the St. Sebastian's Catholic Church, Greenbrae.

Rev. William Burns, assistant pastor at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, will speak on "Christian Ideal of Marriage." Dr. Robert Lee of San Rafael will talk on "The Catholic Doctor Looks at Marriage," and Mr. and Mrs. James Kilty of San Anselmo will speak on "Life Together at Home."

Reservations may be made by calling the Arnold Piatti or the Bernard Whitehill homes.

State Clergy Urge Realty To Reconsider

Leaders of seven regional state church organizations have issued a statement urging the California Real Estate Assn. to reconsider its stand against the Rumford Fair Housing Act.

The association has urged its members to circulate petitions for a referendum vote to amend the state constitution and nullify the act.

"Property rights, important as they are, are not absolute and are subordinate to human rights," the churchmen's statement said.

Those who signed the statement were:

General Presbyter Robert D. Bulkley, North Coastal Area, United Presbyterian Church; Roman Catholic Bishop Hugh A. Donohoe, Stockton Diocese; Conference Minister Richard C. Norberg, Northern California Conference United Church of Christ; Protestant Episcopal bishops James A. Pike, California Diocese and Sumner Walters, San Joaquin Diocese; Methodist bishops Donald H. Tippett, San Francisco Area and Gerald H. Kennedy, Los Angeles Area.

Students Study Bible As History

Year-Long Course Makes Off-Campus Class More Devout

By BILL HUDSON

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—Marvin Montgomery is proud that nine-tenths of his high school pupils are regular church goers.

Montgomery teaches an unusual course in history. His only textbook is the Bible.

For 19 years, juniors and seniors at Paducah Tilghmam High have studied the Bible as historical literature.

The Paducah Association of Churches foots the bill — $40 a year per student. The course is elective but can count among the 18 credits required for graduation.

It became part of the curriculum long before there was any Supreme Court ruling against required Bible reading or devotionals in public schools or governing the release of students during school hours to be trained in religious faith.

"It's something that kind of grew up traditionally," said Dr. Newman Walker, Paducah school superintendent.

Montgomery is an ordained minister. He teaches the classes daily at an off-campus site. The course — "there's nothing denominational about it"—covers the Old Testament one semester; the New Testament another.

Enrollment is open to all pupils but is limited to 145 — about one-fifth of the upper classmen.

"The better students say they appreciate it more than other courses but I guess that is because it is different," Montgomery said.

"They know a little something about it when they start and they find out there is a whole lot they don't know."

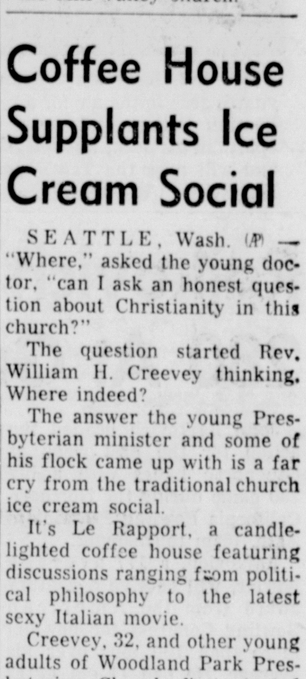

Montgomery was asked how the course affected his students.

"They become more reverent," he replied.

Superintendent Walker thinks the course complies with the basic provisions of the Supreme Court ruling of the late 1940s which permits pupils to be given time off for religious training.

Bible instruction as history or historical literature apparently would meet state law requirements.

Skirting any violation of the separation of church and state principle, Paducah leaders set up the Tilghman Bible Class in 1944, had it incorporated in the curriculum and hired a teacher.

NEW ASSOCIATE — Rev. John S. Bartlett has been installed as associate minister of the Community Church of Mill Valley. The installation service was conducted last Sunday by Dr. Harland E. Hogue, professor of Homiletics, Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley. Rev. Gordon L. Fostor is pastor of the Mill Valley church.

Coffee House Supplants Ice Cream Social

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — "Where," asked the young doctor, "can I ask an honest question about Christianity in this church?"

The question started Rev. William H. Creevey thinking. Where indeed?

The answer the young Presbyterian minister and some of his flock came up with is a far cry from the traditional church ice cream social.

It's Le Rapport, a candlelighted coffee house featuring discussions ranging from political philosophy to the latest sexy Italian movie.

Creevey, 32, and other young adults of Woodland Park Presbyterian Church first started holding weekly discussion meetings at their homes.

One night last June, Bill Creevey, as he is known, brought up the church-related bistro idea. His plan at first was to establish a center primarily for discussion of current motion pictures.

The next day, Creevey learned that the coffee house next door to the Ridgemont theater was for rent. The Ridgemont, eight blocks from the church, specializes in foreign films.

Bill Creevey and his friends got approval from the governing board of the church and, on Sept. 17, the coffee house re-opened with discussion taking the place of dancing.

THIS MAGNIFICENT HOUSE
was planned to take account of the views and surrounding trees. An impressive entry creates lofty interior space separating the living and sleeping areas. Living and dining rooms, divided by massive stone fireplace, have great dramatic effect with exposed beam ceilings extending to the roof overhang and carrying the eye to the vast panoramas of bay and mountains. A spacious deck supplements the tree-shaded terrace off dining room and kitchen. The four bedrooms are also arranged to capture the views; the master bedroom having large adjacent dressing room and its own garden. The natural landscaping has been supplemented with exquisite plantings requiring minimum maintenance. Throughout, the house and garden are distinguished by a quality and artistry seldom offered. $115,000.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Anti-Smoking Campaigns Oppose An 8 Billion Dollar Industry

VAN DELLEN

Modern anti-smoking campaigns are bucking an 8 billion dollar industry and 70 million smokers. The outcome is a moot question. For one thing, tobacco does not come under the FDA. If it did, the evidence that it is harmful would have been sufficient to forbid the sale of cigarettes long ago.

Attacks on tobacco go back to the 16th century. Smoking was opposed during the mid-1500s by church and state as an enslaving addiction. The opposition ceased when Charles I of England and Richelieu of France discovered the vast income obtainable from tobacco as a source of taxation. Times have not changed.

EVIDENCE continues to mount that heavy cigaret smoking is a causal factor in lung cancer, heart attacks, circulatory disorders, cronic bronchitis, and emphysema. Lung cancer kills 41,000 Americans a year, more than the fatalities caused by automobiles. The lung cancer rate is 10 times what it was 30 year ago.

The fight against smoking is aimed at the teen-ager. More youngsters are starting to smoke than adults are quitting. This is logical because it is difficult to stop after the habit is well established. Those who start smoking early in life are more likely to develop the diseases mentioned because they smoke over a longer period of time.

Meanwhile, research is being conducted on how to make smoking safer. This includes the use of filters, changes in smoking patterns, and encouraging cigaret users to switch to pipes, cigars, or little cigars. These forms of tobacco are less hazardous because the individual does not inhale.

Many authorities believe reforms are needed in cigaret advertising and promotion. They want the labels on the package or dispenser to contain informative material, urging caution, as is done with many other products. Tobacco withdrawal clinics are proving successful in Europe and are beginning to catch on in this country.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

FIVE STONES

E. B. D. writes: I have five gallstones—one large and the others, smaller. Is there any medicine to reduce them in size? If not how can I get rid of them?

REPLY

There is no way to dissolve gallstones medically. Removal of the gall bladder and its stony contents will solve this problem forever.

MIGRAINE

J. L. writes: Is migraine an allergic condition?

REPLY

It appears to be in some persons and they ought to curtail the ingestion of such items as chocolate, citrus fruits, and alcohol. But the cause of this type of headache is not known in the majority of victims except that heredity and personality play important roles.

SCARS AFTER HEALING

A. R. writes: If scars are left after sores on the arms and legs heal, does this mean syphilis or cancer? If not, what is the cause?

REPLY

No. Many skin conditions leave scars. Chicken pox, shingles, and boils are examples. Scar tissue may lack pigment and is more noticeable when the rest of the skin is tanned.

M. S. IS CHRONIC

S. B. K. writes: Is multiple sclerosis considered a chronic disease?

REPLY

Yes, although periods of remission often occur. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on multiple sclerosis.

Jam Sessions Help In Indian Dance Chants

KICKAPOO RESERVATION, Kan. (UPI)—Young braves, hep to the beat of the tom tom, stage jam sessions to practice their Indian dance chants.

"Han tah na ten,
"No wah Ah.
"Who wape no nik,
"Ah we Yah."

The sensual, rhythmic wail—blended with the boom of the rawhide drum—enthralls the Indian chant addict like the lonesome cry of the muted trumpet soothes the jazz cat.

On the prairies, in a cool cluster of trees, the young men gather. Like a lead tenor, one bronze singer breaks into a chant. The others follow with the precision of barbershop quartet singers.

They sing of love, war frustrations, life and death. The above quoted chant, to a melancholy Taos Pueblo Indian means, "I'll bet you are just thinking of me." Sometimes chanters break into words of English, but mostly it is in the tribal tongue.

A pair of young Taos Pueblo Indians from New Mexico and a Crow Indian from Montana were guests here at the recent Kickapoo Indians' pow wow. They gathered within the scent of a camp fire, while a breeze cooled them from the plains' summer heat.

The impulse came and they broke into a chant. It was a clear sound, almost wild. The onlooking fans swayed with the rich rhythm, battling their feet to resist the urge of a traditional Indian dance.

The jam session ended and the three took a cup of open fire coffee. They settled on a log for an interview.

"Most of us don't go with this rock 'n' roll," said Gilbert Suazo, 23, who moved from New Mexico to Lawrence, Kan., to find work as a toolmaker. He chants as a hobby. In the impromptu session, he sang lead and rapped the tom tom.

Sam Rideshorse, 21, of Pryor, Mont., chanted the harmony. He holds a clerical job in Kansas City, but longs for the companionship of his Crow nation. Sometimes he takes the lead.

The third member of the trio was 21-year-old Tony Mirabel who lives 70 miles north of Santa Fe, N.M. He is a cousin of Suazo.

All are proud to be Indians and practice their native languages. They sing the ancient songs of their tribes, but also compose new chants.

"Sometimes you're lying real still and you come to it," Suazo explained. "Then sometimes you try like hell and they don't come.

"When a song comes to you," he paused, "it must."

All their lives, the young men said, their fathers and grandfathers taught them the customary chants of the tribe. They said they had little use for music that besets them from juke boxes, radios and concert halls.

"We even sing Indian songs when we're driving our car," Mirabel said. "There's no use to have a radio."

Each agreed that Indian customs and lore were very important in their lives.

"No matter what they say or write," Suazo said, "we know what we've got and we'll keep it."

Their singing, they said, was for pleasure and they are not paid. Recordings of the chants are rare, possessed mostly by admirers who cut their own tapes. They see no economic bonanza in it—just enjoyment.

All three speak good English. But as they walked from the campsite to the pow wow ring, Mirabel and Suazo exchanged words in the Taos Pueblo tongue. Rideshorse, who speaks only Crow and English, didn't understand.

When they joined the other chanters, in the center of the pow wow arena, they sang a common song. Sometimes it sounded sad—as if the Indian epic was passing.

A DUCK WITH PLUCK

Walter, a duck with pluck, will have no truck with Schnapps the pup. The pup wanted to be friends (top) but something ran amuck and he had to turn tail and run (center) to keep from being a snack for the quack. Horsemen Elect Father, Son New Presidents

A Forest Knolls father and son, Doug and Gary Hubbard, are the new presidents of the San Geronimo Valley Horsemen's Assn.

The father heads the senior group and the son the junior group.

Others installed at this week's meeting were Buck Joyce of Forest Knolls, vice president, and William Edrick of Woodacre, secretary treasurer of the senior group, and Clayton Vaughn, vice president, and Jerri Tanzi, secretary treasurer of the junior group.

Helen Elmore of Forest Knolls was named publicity chairman and Violet Pfeffer of San Geronimo was named association historian.

Members voted to keep the gates to the riding ring locked during the rest of the rainy season to prevent damage to the turf.

Startling 'Sermons' For Fair

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some interesting, startling "sermons" will be delivered in the Sermons from Science Pavilion at the New York 1964-65 World's Fair. The discourses will be unlike any sermons ever preached from pulpits.

The exhibit is a project of a committee of Christian laymen, sponsored by the Christian Life Convention of New York City.

Science films in color as well as live demonstrations will be offered in the pavilion's air-conditioned theater.

Multilingual films on such subjects as creation, the atom, space, underseas life and other scientific subjects, produced by the Moody Institute of Science, will seek to show that science and religion are in complete harmony. Earphones and a panel at each of the 500 seats will allow foreign visitors to dial any one of six languages.

The live demonstrations will include such phenomena as eyes that see in total darkness, a cry that can shatter glass, a flashlight that "talks." In one demonstration, a scientist standing on a metal platform will allow one million volts of electricity to pass through his body as lightning flashes from metal caps on his fingers.

The Pavilion will consist of a circular theater connected to a smaller circular wing, surrounded by a reflecting pool and fountains of water and flame.

Coin Club Speaker

William G. Walsh, former employee at the San Francisco Mint, will speak to the Marin Coin Club at its meeting at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at Brown's Hall, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Radar Officer Given Award

The first radar intercept officer at Hamilton Air Force Base, and probably the first in the Air Defense Command to receive the "master of air defense" rating is Capt. Edward A. Osuchowski of the 84th Fighter Interceptor Squadron.

He qualified for the award by passing all phases of a tactical evaluation test given by officials of the 28th Air Division and the Air Defense Command. The "master" award, the ADC's newest and highest rating for proficiency in air defense, has been awarded only 17 times previously—all to pilots.

Captain Osuchowski, who has more than 1,700 hours as a radar intercept officer, lives at 1011 Turner Drive, Novato, with his wife Susan and their two children, Bryan and Kellie.

Tam High Choir To Be In Pacific Music Clinic

The Tamalpais High School choir and advanced orchestra will participate in the annual University of the Pacific music clinic Feb. 1 at Stockton.

Thirty-eight choir members will sing under direction of the school's music director, Robert Greenwood, with 1,800 other high school students. There will be a concert in the evening in the university auditorium.

Tiburon Chamber Of Commerce Elects Officers

They are: President, Edward P. Ward; vice president, B. J. Talbot; secretary, Harold E. Sloat; treasurer, Fred H. Brylka. Elected to the board of directors were William H. Rafter, Henry E. Tomasini and David W. Allen.

Outgoing president is James Murray.

Representatives of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. spoke about the manner in which a changeover from aerial to underground utilities might be effected.

A committee to make a study of underground utilities was appointed with Allen as chairman, Berlenbach, Elva Paske and a representative of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Drunken Driver Gets $166 Fine

Alfred Wilson Demuele, 45, of 65 La Brea Way, San Rafael, paid $166 fine yesterday for drunken driving.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court sentenced Demuele for driving while intoxicated along North San Pedro Road on New Year's Eve. The judge put Demuele on six months probation and restricted his driving for three months.

Willie Joe Wise, 34, of Petaluma drew $110 fine and six months probation. Judge Joseph G. Wilson sentenced him for driving while intoxicated along Highway 101 on Christmas Eve. For the next three months, Wise may drive only for work.

Centering On Marin's Civic Center From High Up

Marin's Civic Center is a light oblong near the left-center of this aerial view which looks south from above Marinwood. It is the fastest growing area of the county.

At the center foreground on Highway 101, the interchange of Lucas Valley Road can be seen in a near-rectangular pattern. To the east, the fan-shaped area is a movie drive-in.

Moving south along the highway one comes to the Manuel Freitas Parkway overpass. Just west of it the new Emporium, the biggest building in the Northgate Shopping Center is under construction.

Over Puerto Suello Hill lies downtown San Rafael, Point San Quentin and then Corte Madera.

In the distance is the Tiburon Peninsula and Richardson Bay. Golden Gate Bridge is hidden from view by the Waldo Hills.

Most of the area in foreground is served by the Dixie School District. In 1954 it was still operating with one small school. Now it has six schools and more planned, one of the best indications of the growth in the North San Rafael, Terra Linda area.

Language Learned By Ear

SANTA VENETIA Junior High School teacher Cecil R. Shelley demonstrates how colored posters are used in the San Rafael City Schools audio-lingual method program for the teaching of foreign languages. The posters serve to illustrate the agreement of adjectives with the nouns they modify, as well as assisting in vocabulary building. Shelley teaches five periods of French and two of Spanish each school day. (Photo by Ken Molino)

Junior high youngsters at Davidson and Santa Venetia schools are speaking in many tongues this year in the San Rafael City School system's first full-time required foreign language program.

For 45 minutes each school day, all students are learning French, German or Spanish by the audio-lingual method (ALM) in which they listen and speak the language long before they see the first written word.

"This is why we think ALM is a realistic approach to the study of languages," Hanlon Tharp, Davidson principal, explained. "Familiarity with the words and sound of a language provide a comfortable entry to the formal study of the written word."

The ALM teacher might be compared with an a cappella choir director, or, more prosaically, a traffic cop, as he directs the class through the intricacies, inflections and tones of the language.

TO PREVENT monotony, several audio-visual aids are utilized as well as classroom conversations and drama skits.

This year the junior high schools received a grant under the National Defense Education Act for ALM materials and language laboratories to carry out their program.

The materials include loose-leaf binders of class units to carry the students through two years under the program. Records and tapes are used to amplify the class work. The records are available for home listening or for use in the lab.

The laboratories are provided through special perimeter wiring that sets up 36 listening stations in a classroom with earphones and microphones established so that desks can be lined along the sides of the room or moved so that the room may be used as a regular classroom at other times.

STUDENTS repeat words, sentences and conversation under the teachers' direction or after hearing native voices on a record or tape. The tapes are also used to record the student's voice and played back through the earphones so that pupils can correct their own pronunciation. While this process is going on, the teacher can listen or speak to any individual student or group in the room.

San Rafael schools have offered foreign languages for years on an elective basis, but this is the first year that every student has been required to take a language, according to Larry Geiger, Santa Venetia principal.

Both junior highs offer French and Spanish while Davidson provides a German class as well.

Davidson has five foreign language teachers instructing 22 classes daily: Eleven in Spanish, 10 in French and one in German. The school has 622 students enrolled.

SANTA VENETIA, with less than half Davidson's enrollment, offers 10 sections a day taught by three foreign language teachers. Since all Santa Venetia eighth graders began their language study with French, there are eight French classes daily and two Spanish groups.

Tharp points out that since the state will require foreign language for grades six through eight by 1965, San Rafael is fortunate to have its program under way now in order to iron out problems and benefit from early selection of trained language teachers.

Both schools have been fortunate in gaining trained teachers in the field, most of whom have had special instruction in the new methods of teaching foreign language in the elementary schools.

Santa Venetia's three teachers are Cecil Shelley, Miss Glaudine Gasser and Mrs. Margaret Scott. Davidson's five teachers are Miss Marilyn Grebe, Miss Marilyn George, Mrs. Nonette Holm, John Burk and Maurice Schimetschek. Two of the instructors have master's degrees, three have attended National Defense Education Act foreign language institutes and three have taught at schools in Europe.

SAN RAFAEL has gained such a reputation for this pilot program that teachers from throughout the Bay Area have been visiting local classrooms to observe the methods used here.

Students entering an ALM classroom must put all books and materials away and give their entire attention to the teacher. Texts are not used for the first semester until the students have a speaking

"What Spotted My Skirt When I Pressed It At Home?"

You say that your iron was perfectly clean, yet brown spots appeared when your hot iron was used to press your skirt.

It would be nearly impossible, to determine the exact source of the stain. The cause was using the hot iron on it. The stain was probably colorless when it contracted the fabric. The heat of the iron oxidized the stain, resulting in the brown color. Many types of vegetables would make such a stain, including lilies, poinsettia, banana trees and others. Liquids containing sugar, also, will carmelize under heat and turn brown.

The safest practice is to send your garments to a professional for cleaning before applying heat. Forgotten contact with stain-causing substances may, under heat, bring out stains often impossible to remove. Take your skirt to a professional cleaner now. He may still be able to lessen the stain to some degree without loss of color in the skirt.

vocabulary and are ready for the special materials to introduce them to the written language.

However, there will be little of the formal grammar, writing and translation that is traditional with language study until high school when pupils begin to prepare for college language courses.

Since this is the first year of full programming in the field of foreign language, the San Rafael principals agree that there "will be bugs to iron out." The schools will continue to meet with sixth grade and high school language teachers to coordinate language programs so that they will follow in sequence.

TESTS ARE being developed for student placement and other questions are still under discussion. These include the problem of the student with learning limitations, transfer students from other districts who have not had the same preparation as San Rafael pupils and the placement of children whose second language is English.

It is, the language teachers say, a pioneering program for this area. But, they hasten to add, it is not an experiment. It is, they feel, a sound and sensible program which will continue to improve through the next few years as experience is acquired.

WITH EARPHONES in place, Davidson students test the language laboratory equipment at their junior high school. From back to front, the seventh and eighth graders are Deana Giomi, Julie Saul, Suzanne Moser, Dennis Wright, Deborah Whearty, Jerry Bender and Jeanne Holloway. (Photos by Ken Molino)

The Versatile Mr. Hop

Stage Veteran Contributes Mightily To Success Of Marin Little Theater

By BARBARA HARRIS

When the Sausalito Little Theater's Original Drama Workshop opened last night, Emile "Hop" Waldteufel was there—in triplicate.

"It's not so hard to get involved in the theater," he explains, wincing a little at the understatement.

This particular involvement, with the third Original Drama Workshop, began last spring when Hop and his actress wife Eugenie joined the committee of judges of the annual playwriting contest sponsored by the theater. By midsummer, they had read nearly 200 of the 300 entries, of which seven were ultimately awarded prizes.

Six of the selected works are being presented by the Sausalito Little Theater this month. Two of the plays, "The Preacher" by Jackson Burgess, and "Capriccio" by D. J. Coombs, are being directed by Hop. He has an acting role in "Capriccio," and in "Majorcan Games" by Caryl De Faria.

AND WHEN a seventh play, "Conjure Man," is presented later in the year, Hop will be directing it.

Hop, who has lived in Mill Valley for 12 of his 20 years in Marin, is equally contented as critic, director, and performer.

"From the beginning," he says, "the selection of the plays was exciting work. Every time you turn to the first page of a manuscript, you have a feeling of hope. You've got to admire anyone who can just sit down and write a play.

"I believe there's not enough opportunity for new playwrights in this country. So anything that encourages them, gives them a hearing, is bound to be worthwhile."

Hop would like to continue readings of new plays on a monthly basis throughout the year.

"WE REJECTED many good plays, because we just didn't have time to edit them. We could be of real service to novice playwrights, if we could let them see the strengths and weaknesses of their work, and its effect upon audiences."

As for directing, Hop has a flexible approach.

"I think the director has to give an actor an opportunity to create his role as he sees it. But sometimes you can't wait too long for him to develop it, or it may not grow into a meaningful part. Sometimes I'm blunt, sometimes the 'bee in the bonnet' approach works best. The main thing is to help the actor realize himself as the character, and I try everything. Then, when he gets it, all I can do is hope he can hold onto it, and perfect it."

THE WALDTEUFELS have made a hobby of the stage for more than 14 years. They were active in the founding of the Sausalito Little Theater, became charter members of the Cove Players, and have worked with many Bay Area theater groups, among them the Ross Valley Players and the Beach and Hyde Playhouse.

Those who have seen them act in such plays as "The Little Foxes," "Blythe Spirit," and "The Rainmaker," or have heard them in programs of readings, assume they are professional actors who have polished their art with intensive training. Such, however, is not the case.

"We've never seriously thought of acting as a vocation," Hop says. "In little theater you can work hard, frantically hard, for a while. Then you can get away from it, and know it's always there for you."

BOTH HOP and Eugenie Waldteufel have strong feelings about performing.

"You learn a lot about yourself, when you're acting," Hop says. "I can't think of another recreation that follows the meaning of the word so closely. You look at the character you are to be, and you look at yourself to see what there is of him in you.

"When I'm learning a role, I take the character apart and put him together again. What we see on the stage is a matter of a few hours, or days, in the life of this person. I try to think what could have made him the way he is, and how his future life will be affected from the point where the play stops."

"That's his way," Eugenie says. "He's a thinking actor, and I go by intuition. Finally, of course, I think the character through, but at the beginning of a new role it's all feeling with me."

IN HER judgment, her husband develops his characterizations more slowly than she does, but he accomplishes a deeper portrayal. Hop disagrees that his work is more thorough than hers.

"She's a perfectionist," he says. He adds his disappointment that she is not doing more work in the theater at the present time.

"Oh, I'd like to act, just once, when I had nothing else to think about," she says. "If you're attending to your home and your family you can't give all your emotion to a part, and if you don't put it aside you feel guilty. It's easier for men to remove themselves from their everyday life. But both emotionally and by tradition, it's hard for a woman. She has a conflict, right off the bat."

But when a vacancy developed in the cast for "Capriccio" being directed by her husband, it was Eugenie who stepped into the role on short notice.

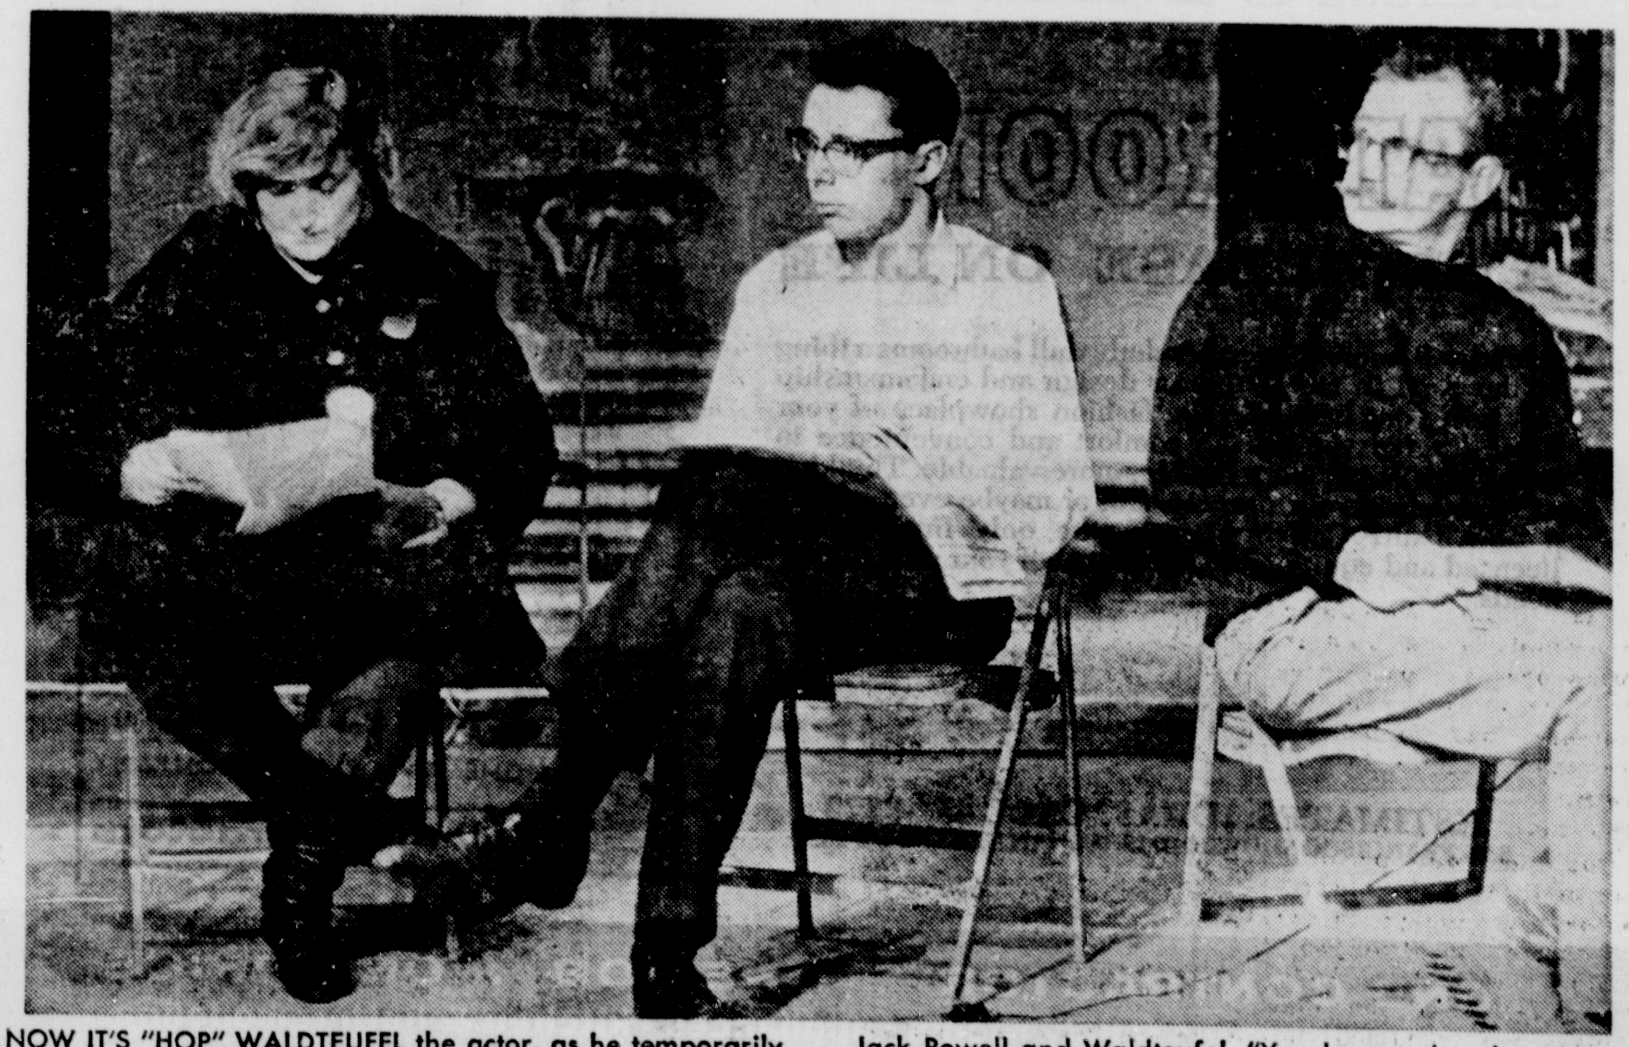

EUGENIE HAS her share of domestic responsibilities.

The Waldteufels have four

AS THE DIRECTOR, Emile (Hop) Waldteufel of Mill Valley follows closely a rehearsal of D. J. Coombs' "Capriccio," one of two one-act plays which he is directing for the Sausalito Little Theater's current Original Drama Workshop series. The versatile Waldteufel served on the panel of judges which selected for performance the winning plays in the workshop competition. He also acts in two of the productions.

NOW IT'S "HOP" WALDTEUFEL the actor, as he temporarily casts aside his function as director to rehearse the role he is playing in "Capriccio." Reading their lines from the Sausalito Little Theater stage are, left to right, Pat Bond, Jack Powell and Waldteufel. "You learn a lot about yourself when you are acting," says Waldteufel, a veteran of the little theater.

children. The eldest, Natalie, is an artist who lives in Tiburon with her husband and infant son. Emile Jr., 19, is still at home, as are the two younger daughters, Eugenie, 15, and Remy, 12.

The Waldteufels met while they were teen-agers.

"We never gave a thought to theater in those days," Eugenie says. "I couldn't even go through the graduation ceremony at Tamalpais High School, I was so panic-stricken at the thought of crossing the stage."

THEY MARRIED during World War II, while Hop was serving as first mate in the Merchant Marine. He had gone to sea at 17, after his graduation from Galileo High School, and served on passenger ships and freighters for 11 years. Following the war, Hop took up landscape gardening, but after 10 years at that career he came to his present work, for a tool distributor in San Francisco.

It was while they were living in Sausalito that the opportunity came to join in the beginning of the Sausalito Little Theater. Eventually they became co-directors of its workshop for actors. They also took part in the first of the Original Drama Workshops three years ago.

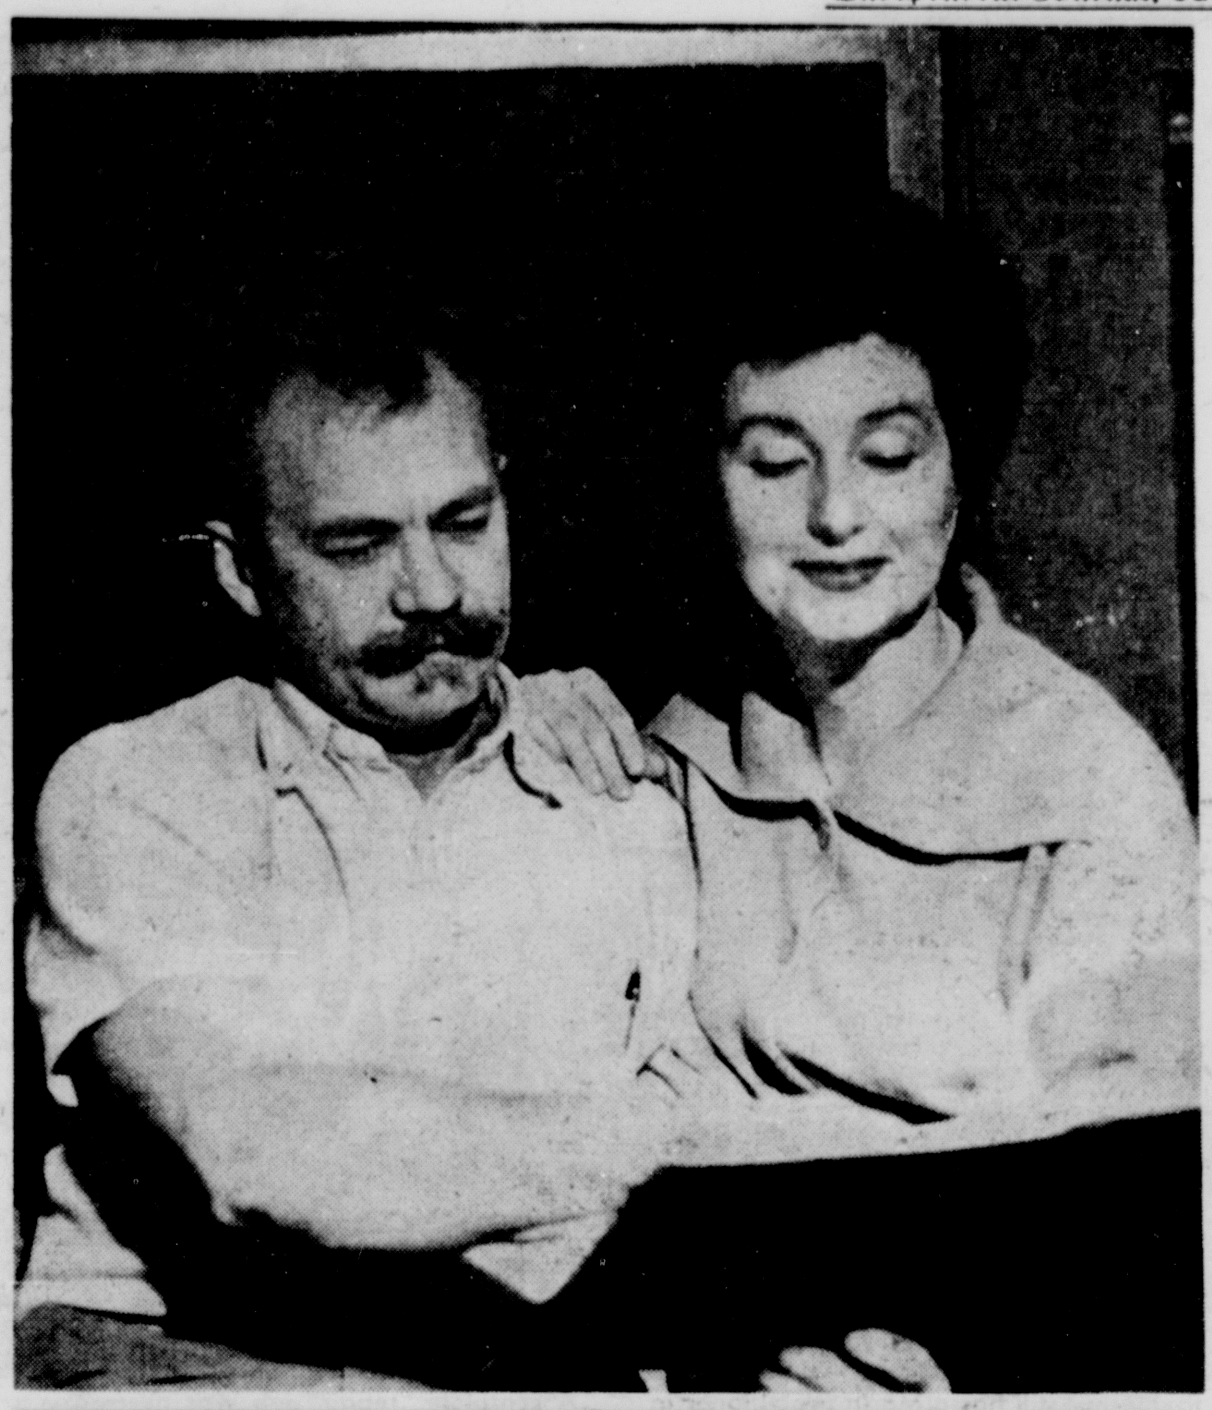

Although working together in the theater takes up most of their leisure time, the Waldteufels share one other hobby, rock collecting.

"Eugenie specializes," Hop says, "in very large rocks which she finds long distances from the car."

ONE CO-WORKER has summarized the Waldteufel's value to the theater in this way: "People like Hop and Eugenie are the root stock of the theater. It's not just their dedication, because lots of people have that. And it's more than talent, as important as that is. But when they're there, acting, or directing, or just giving support to those who do, everyone around them catches their spirit, the satisfaction of creating something worthwhile."

It is this spirit of commitment which permeates the Original Drama Workshop, and accounts for its rapid expansion over the past three years. The versatility of Hop Waldteufel has contributed more than a little to this growth.

The 1964 workshop schedule continues with performances of three of the award-winning plays tonight in the little theater on Bridgeway. Curtain time is 8:30. Additional programs of the one-act plays are scheduled for the evenings of Jan. 17, 18, 24 and 25.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

During the past year there have been several articles in professional journals on the subject of distortion caused by the stereo phono pickup cartridge. The articles were concerned with the deflection angle of the stylus, needle, in the cartridge.

When the record masters are made, the cutter stylus that cuts the grooves is cutting into the material at an angle of approximately 15 degrees from the vertical. Different record manufacturers use different angles, some ranging up to 21 degrees. Most of our stereo cartridges have styli that have an effective vertical angle and thus are not tracking the grooves with the same angle of deflection that was used with the cutter head. The articles point out that this difference in angle causes distortion to the signal.

We recently received our first shipment of the new Shure Model M44-7 stereo cartridges. This cartridge is a new design that incorporates a stylus angle of deflection of 15 degrees from the vertical. It is hoped that the industry will adopt the 15 degree angle for cutting the grooves. To test the cartridge, I mounted it in a shell and connected it to my music system at home. The nearest record at hand was an older LeRoy Anderson album so I placed it on the platter. The sound was startling. It truly was the clearest sound I had ever heard coming from a record. The sounds were very clear and distinct. The muddiness that sometimes is quite noticeable on records was completely gone. Impact sounds made by snares and blocks were so crisp that I felt they were actually in the room. Since this test I have played many records and in each one I can hear the difference.

The Shure M44-7 is a high quality stereo cartridge with a diamond needle. This needle incorporates a new retractile design that prevents record-scratch or stylus damage. When excessive force is exacted on the stylus it momentarily retracts and a soft plastic bumper comes in contact with the record.

The cartridge has an excellent frequency response of from 20 to 20,000 cps. The M44-7 Dynetic Cartridge is completely compatible. It will play Stereo Discs Stereophonically, Monaural Discs Monaurally, and Stereo Discs Monaurally without excessive wear and distortion. Hear it in our sound room.

THE VANISHING SKILL of taxidermy still has a Marin practitioner in 17-year-old Don C. Hanks. Here he is seen in his Woodacre home with some of the trophies he has stuffed and mounted. The squirrel he found dead on the highway after being struck by an automobile. A complete "repair" job was necessary to restore the lifelike appearance of that little animal. Young Hanks has been engaged in taxidermy work for four years, learning the craft through a correspondence course. Sportsmen are calling upon him more and more to preserve their prize game. Woodacre's Teen-Age Taxidermist

Don C. Hanks Finds Challenge In Making His Trophies Life-Like

By DON KEOWN

"That's the way I spend almost all my weekends," the Sir Francis Drake High School senior says.

But Hank carries his interest in the outdoors one step further and preserves his trophies after he bags them. He is a skilled practitioner of the dying craft of taxidermy.

AND SO, between weekends in the field, young Hanks spends much of his time stuffing and mounting the game and fish he has brought home.

As word has spread about his unusual hobby, Don has also built up a growing business of mounting trophies for other sportsmen of the area.

"I thought about putting up a sign and really going into taxidermy as a business," he says. "But I found that just by word of mouth, I was getting all the work I could handle without interfering with my school work."

Four years ago he was reading an outdoor magazine and noticed the advertisement of the Northwestern School of Taxidermy. He decided to enroll by mail.

"I found it to be a good course, and I have recommended it to others," he says.

At first, Don confined his taxidermy practice to his own trophies. Then friends began recommending him to their acquaintances.

Since he first experimented by mounting a bluejay, Hanks has done deer heads, a bobcat, squirrels, a great horned owl, ducks and other wild fowl, fish, etc.

HANKS GOT a special thrill out of his recent assignment to mount an Emperor Goose, rare in these parts.

The teen-ager does his smaller taxidermy jobs in the kitchen of his home, thanks to the tolerance of his mother, Eva. Larger projects are carried out in the Hanks garage.

The youth says that while there is more money in mounting deer heads, birds such as ducks actually present a more difficult challenge.

"This is because you have to remove every bit of the meat, even from the wings and legs, so that you have only skin and feathers left," he explains. "On the duck, a second incision is necessary at the head for the removal of the brains, and the insertion of the glass eyes."

MOUNTING birds is especially difficult then, he adds, because of the delicacy of the work involved.

The actual stuffing and mounting of a deer head takes about two days, he says. But advance preparations such as the pickling must take place over a three-week period.

The youth's father, Don R. Hanks, is the manager of a San Rafael service station. He shares his son's interest in outdoor life, but is not a taxidermist.

As for his hobby, the younger Hanks says: "It is something that not everyone can do. You have to have a certain knack. And it is a skill which is dying out. As animals grow more scarce, there is less taxidermy. It was much more popular 10 years ago than it is today."

AND HE WON'T be happy unless he brings back a grizzly bear and some other Arctic trophies.

"I've never tackled anything like that," he says, "but I think I would enjoy the special taxidermy problems such specimens would present.

"After all, that is a major part of the enjoyment of taxidermy—the fact that no two animals or birds or fish are ever exactly alike. And there's always that challenge to make your work look just as lifelike as possible."

Don Hanks Retains Game He Bags As Hunting Trophies

His Unusual Hobby Of Taxidermy Is Growing Into Part-Time Business

Marin MAGAZINE

DON C. HANKS goes to work on a duck. What makes such birds an especially tedious subject for the taxidermist is the fact that every bit of flesh must be removed—even from the wings and feet—before the duck can be stuffed. A second incision is also required for the head.

ANOTHER PROBLEM which the duck presents for the taxidermist is the feathers which keep getting in the way. Don Hanks solves it by using a pan of water and sponge to keep the feathers wet and compact.

MEASUREMENTS MUST BE exact in taxidermy. Don Hanks uses a tape measure to get his specifications for the duck's head. On the table in front of him can be seen some of his taxidermy tools and supplies including the excelsior which he will use to stuff the bird.

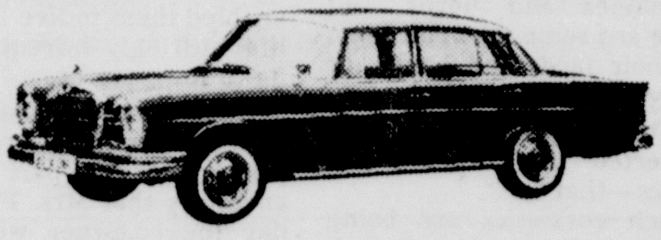

THE EXCELSIOR GOES into the bird in just the right quantity as young Hanks completes yet another step in his stuffing and mounting of the duck. Then the bird will be sewed up and mounted, becoming a handsome life-like trophy such as the duck pictured on the cover of this Marin Magazine, and appropriate for any den or recreation room.

EXPERIMENTING WITH just a few of the many fruits, vegetables and herbs from which their cosmetics are derived are Mrs. Helene Fly, left, and Mrs. Zoe Swanagon, co-owners of the Zolene Organic Cosmetics Inc. of San Rafael. The small but growing firm headed by the two women produces a full line of cosmetics manufactured from natural products. But behind each of these products lies extensive laboratory testing. Zolene—Nature's Way To Beauty

By DON KEOWN

Most people eat their fruit, vegetables and herbs. But there are some who rub them on their faces and hands, or spray them in their hair.

After they have first been converted into organic cosmetics—that is.

Such cosmetics are being produced by a San Rafael-based enterprise known as Zolene Organic Cosmetics, Inc., that has been in operation less than five years, but whose roots can be traced back to the pioneer forefathers of one of the firm's founders, Mrs. Helene Fly.

Mrs. Fly is a descendant of hardy stock that came to California by covered wagon.

AND SHE remembers her grandparents as self-sufficient and ingenious people who had learned to make the land and its plantlife serve their needs.

Their soaps came from the roots of the soapweed, their medicines from the resins of trees. Recipes and skills handed down through generations enabled them to live the good life with only infrequent visits to town stores.

It was because she was so impressed with this resourcefulness on the part of her ancestors that Mrs. Fly is today the co-owner with Mrs. Zoe Swanagon of their unusual business enterprise.

The two women are the chief and sole officers of Zolene Organic Cosmetics, with headquarters at 32 Front Street in San Rafael.

THEY SAY it all began this way:

Some years ago while the two friends were residing in Santa Rosa, Zoe was plagued by a skin problem which failed to respond to treatment with commercial preparations. Helene, harkening back to her childhood days when her grandparents had turned to nature to solve such problems, suggested to her friend that she try organic materials on her skin.

The success of the experiment titillated the interest of both women in such folklore. As a result, they conducted a survey, going door-to-door in both Sonoma and Marin counties, to ask the householders for their recollections of the homemade preparations earlier generations had used in place of the cosmetics, medicines, cleaners, etc., now readily available in stores.

"At that time, we weren't thinking in the least of going into business for ourselves," they stress. "We were simply curious."

THEIR CANVASS uncovered a wealth of ideas, many of them still in use.

For example, they found that egg was still much used for facial masks to soften the skin. Lemon juice was resorted to commonly for the removal of stains. The soapweed came in for frequent mention. Camomile had a continuing history of cosmetic usage as well as its more familiar medicinal tea purpose. Some women rubbed raw potato on their skins.

And many many more herbs, fruits, vegetables, roots, leaves, berries, seeds, nuts, etc., were mentioned.

"Most of these home preparations had been handed down for many generations," the women say, "and very often the present user had not the slightest idea as to why a particular product was put to some specific purpose. They just knew that grandmother or grandfather or great-grandparents used it, and that it seemed to work."

Availability was also a factor, the women discovered.

FOR INSTANCE, both soapweed and camomile, among the most frequently mentioned, turned out to be Marin natives. "We found the latter growing in cracks in the sidewalk on San Rafael's Fourth Street," they say, "while friends scoured the hills and brought back soapweed."

Not all "soapweeds" proved effective, however, and the women soon discovered that a multitude of plants bore that common name. There followed the task of pinning down the particular species that had served California pioneers.

Their interest increasing, Mrs. Fly and Mrs. Swanagon now turned to trained chemists for assistance in determining just which of the many mentioned materials might have actual commercial value. Some of this work was performed for them by University of California chemists with access to the laboratory facilities of that vast institution.

"What they found, generally, was that there was some basis in fact and merit behind virtually all of these beliefs," the women report. "But in many cases, that value was too minute to indicate any commercial potential."

BUT IN OTHER cases, the laboratory tests uncovered substantial practical benefits.

"For instance, it was shown that it was the lecithin in eggs, mainly in the yolks, that made egg such an efficient choice for facial masks."

(Zolene now uses lecithin in virtually all its products, but derives that substance mostly from soybeans instead of eggs.)

The two women also indulged in extensive historical research in an effort to track down the beginnings of the cosmetic folklore their door-to-door inquiries had uncovered.

"IT WAS AT this time that we began to ask ourselves seriously: Why don't we market this thing? We had found a considerable interest during our house-to-house contacts in cosmetic preparations with a more natural base."

The preliminary surveys had begun in 1956 and continued into 1959. Then the women began "manufacturing" their first preparations.

The work was performed by the two women in the kitchens of their Santa Rosa homes. Their first two products were a strawberry cleansing cream and a papaya moisture cream. Then, with the help of their consulting chemists, and at a considerable cost, the partners decided to formulate a complete line of organic cosmetics.

At the outset, the preparations were used only by the two women themselves, and by their close friends on a test basis. Their confidence in the commercial potential of their products grew, and the manufacturing operations were transferred to a small house in the backyard behind Mrs. Fly's home.

THE WOMEN also began approaching prospective retail outlets to determine whether there was a demand for their preparations.

"Our reception was far better than we had anticipated," they report.

In 1962 the decision was made to go into full production, and the entire operation was shifted to San Rafael. But within a year, the manufacturing phase outgrew the 2,000 square feet of floor space available to it in San Rafael. So that part of the business was moved to Berkeley, where it now functions.

The business office and test laboratory remain in San Rafael at the Front Street address. There experiments are being performed continuously to develop new and improved products.

MRS. FLY and Mrs. Swanagon say they are looking for suitable manufacturing facilities in San Rafael. When these are found, the factory will be moved back to Marin from Berkeley.

San Rafael is the ideal site, they feel, because of its proximity to both the organic farming area and the metropolitan marketing area.

Zolene, which began as a partnership, is now organized as a corporation with Mrs. Fly as president, Mrs. Swanagon as secretary-treasurer -- "we drew straws."

SALES ARE climbing steadily month after month, and there are now 15 employees

GUILTY CONSCIENCE?

When you want to sit and read a good book, does a guilty conscience prod you to weed the garden? Or fix a gate? Or do any of a householder's hundred-odd chores?

Do you dream of greater leisure . . . of more time to do the fun things of life . . . to play golf . . . to travel . . . to read a book . . . or just to sun bathe beside the pool? If householder's chores are standing between you and the realization of your dreams, then read this advertisement carefully.

You Can Make These Dreams Come True . .

The cure for your guilty conscience is to eliminate the chores. And that's just what happens when you live in a Condominium. With neighbors to share the costs, you hire out the gardening, the pool service, the building maintenance. It costs surprisingly little. And suddenly somebody else is doing the work and you are free to enjoy it all.

You are the "Chore-free" owner . . .

. . . yet you retain all of the advantages of income tax deductions and equity accumulation. You buy, own and sell with your very own grant deed, plus an undivided proportional interest in the land, swimming pool, social building and common areas. Top quality financing . . . 5¾% interest to qualified buyers. Or secondary financing is available if cash is the problem.

All in One Loan . . .

In home buying there are many "extras" to worry you . . . carpets, drapes, refrigerator, laundry equipment, garden installation. Every one of these extras is included in your basic Condominium loan at the low 5¾% interest rate.

Use the Equity from Your Present House

If funds are frozen in your present house, we will guarantee its sale at a pre-agreed price. No uncertainty! No delay! Buy your Condominium residence today confident that funds will be available when you need them. Ask our Salesman for details.

Now is the Time . . .

. . . to investigate Comdominium ownership. Visit East Harbor Estates and see what a lovely residence may be yours . . . and for so little.

Our Sales Manager, Bob Blake, will gladly mail an informative brochure detailing answers to many of your questions on Condominium ownership.

including sales personnel on the road. Five work in the San Rafael office and lab, four in Berkeley.

There are sales outlets throughout the country—principally beauty parlors and health food stores — and in some foreign countries.

Zolene Organic Cosmetics, Inc., now turns out a line of 21 different products, using hundreds of ingredients. Included among those ingredients are virtually all the herbs, many, many seeds, nuts and berries, strawberry oil, papaya juice, apricot kernel oil, almond oil, crushed almonds, avocado oil, eggs, soybean oil, sesame oil, roots, even weeds.

THE PRODUCT list starts with the strawberry facial cream and papaya moisture cream with which the business began. It also includes:

A two-unit herbal mask, the main base of which is balsam of Peru.

An almond, honey and mint complexion compound.

A lemon oil eye and throat cream.

An avocado hand cream rich in lecithin.

A vitamins A and D skin cream.

A hair shampoo, rinse and oil "especially designed to be organically compatible with one another."

A fruit extract skin freshener.

And several other preparations of a like nature.

"NATURE'S way to beauty through fruits, vegetables and herbs" claims the literature put out by the firm. The pamphlet adds: "There are no waxes, extenders or fillers used. All ingredients are organically compatible and pure. Many of our creams feature lecithin and all are water soluble."

But the booklet warns: "Remember: The foods you consume are reflected in your complexion. Without proper rest and nutritional foods, your skin will not reflect a healthy, radiant you."

A major problem, the women say, is the impossibility of making different batches of the same cosmetic identical in color, texture, etc.

"SINCE OUR natural ingredients are never exactly the same, neither are our products."

And because no chemical preservatives are used — "we do use natural preservatives such as honey"—mold is also a problem.

Paradoxically, the variation and the mold are blessings as well as problems.

"This variation and even the mold seem to give our customers added confidence in our products," they say. "They realize that these factors only serve to prove our claim that we use only natural ingredients, and that no chemical preservatives are added to our preparations."

ZOLENE cosmetics are never made in quantities greater than a single 100-gallon kettle at one time.

Along with becoming businesswomen, Mrs. Fly's recollections of her grandparents' resourcefulness has also catapulted the two women into the roles of students and scholars of cosmetics history and folklore. They have found their research among old books and into old trunks a fascinating pursuit. And as a result of their extensive research, they are at work on a book of the history of cosmetics, the first draft of which has been completed.

Several publishers have already indicated an interest in their book.

THE USE OF cosmetics, the women say, pre-dates history. Their research has turned up such ancient formulae as:

From the ancient Arabians, Batikha, a preparation for the whitening of the skin of women that spread throughout the Orient. The ingredients include cowrie shells, borax, rice, white marble, crystal, tomato, lemons, eggs, bean meal, chick peas and lentils, all ground together in mortar. The resulting mass is then placed inside a melon and mixed with the pulp and seeds, then exposed to the sun until completely dried when the whole is reduced to powder.

From the ancient Egyptians and Arabs, Kohl, a cosmetic used to blacken the eyebrows and to darken the eyelids that is still popular in the East. The inside of a lemon is removed and the cavity filled with a mixture of plumbago and burnt copper. It is then placed in a fire until carbonized, after which it is pounded in a mortar with a mixture of coral, sandalwood, pearls, ambergris, the body of a chameleon and the wing of a bat, all of which have been previously burnt to c i n d e r s. While still hot, rose water is added to the concoction to form a paste.

FROM THE Chinese dating back to the Fourth Dynasty, this recipe for the face and neck: One teaspoon of almond oil, two tablespoons of light honey and one small egg are beaten together, then applied to face, allowed to harden for 20 minutes and then removed with water.

From the Egyptians dating back to Cleopatra's time, this formula for face and neck: One egg, a tablespoon of milk and a teaspoon of honey are applied to face and neck, allowed to harden as long as desired and then removed with cold water.

From America's early settlers, this hand cleanser and softener: Mix four tablespoons of finely-ground cornmeal, two tablespoons of honey and two teaspoons of cornstarch. Keep in a small jar, covered. Use as a hand soap, rinsing with cold water.

THE MORE elaborate of the above recipes obviously include ingredients of no practical value, the women say. "But the ancient peoples were not sure which ones worked and which ones didn't so they just kept them all."

And many of those ingr dients still do their work e fectively today, they claim

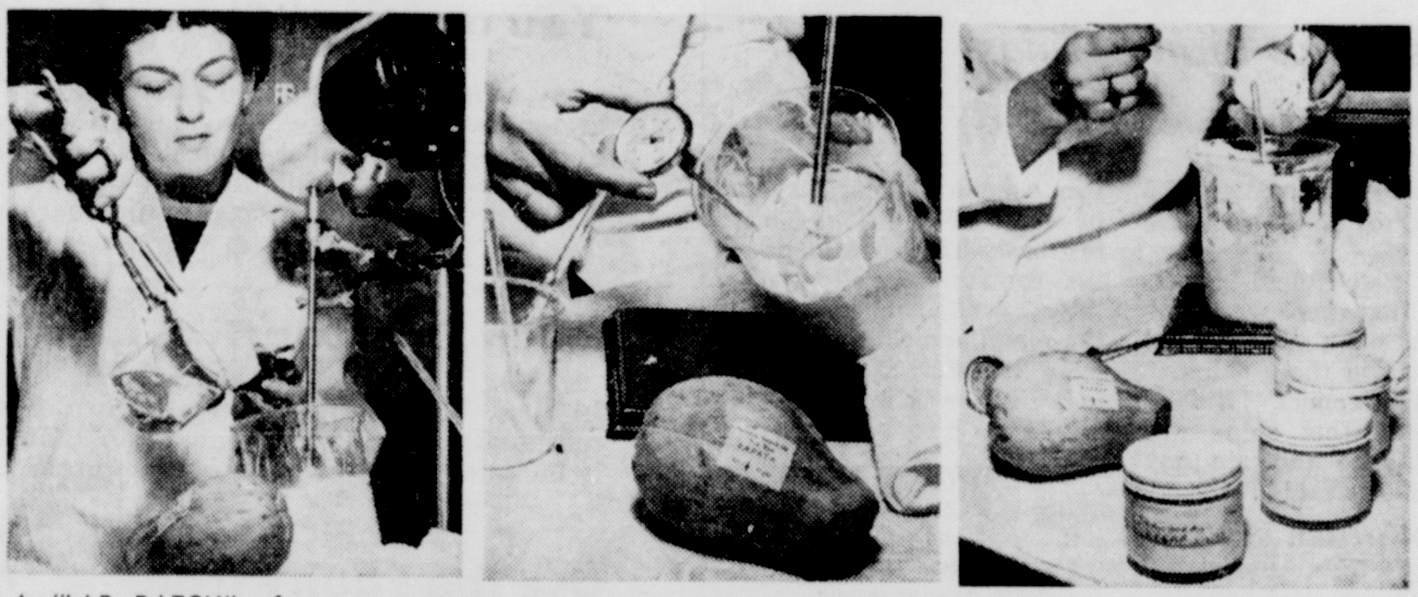

The two women admit tha they have encountered sco fers in their championing organic cosmetics.

"We've been told that w are some kind of nuts, an likened to the food faddists, they smile.

BUT THE women point ou that they operate under th supervision of both federa and state inspectors, and tha the governments scan not on ly their manufacturing opera tions but their advertisin claims as well.

"We know that the presen generation has acquired a lo of knowledge that past gene ations didn't have," they say "But we also feel that pa g e n e r a t i o n s had a lot knowledge that has been lo to us. And that we can lear something about cosmetic even by going back as far a the ancient Egyptians an Chinese."

But worry not, ladies. Ther are no chameleons or ba wings in the Zolene prepar tions. Papaya, strawberri and honey, yes. But chame eons, no.

A "LAB BATCH" of papaya moisture cream is prepared by Mrs. Helene Fly, president of Zolene Organic Cosmetics Inc., in the firm's laboratory. At left, she pours the oil phase of her mixture into its water phase. Center, Mrs. Fly checks the properties of a finished preparation as a basis for moisture cream. And at right, the papaya cream is placed in control sample jars for shelf testing. It will be left on the shelves for years to determine its lasting qualities.

OUT OF THE LAB and into the office, business women Mrs. Helene Fly and Mrs. Zoe Swanagon make use of maps on the wall during a business discussion. They are considering possible new sales outlets for their Zolene products. The organic cosmetics are sold throughout the U. S. and in some foreign countries in beauty parlors and in health food stores.

Another Voice Raised Against Waste Of America's Heritage

By DON KEOWN

Still another voice has been raised in protest of America's systematic despoiling of its natural beauty and wasting of its richest resources.

Joining such national figures as Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall, author Lewis Mumford and U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, and such West Coast authorities as Harold Gilliam, Lawrence Halprin and Allan Temko is Peter Blake, editor of Architectural Forum, in a new book entitled "God's Own Junkyard" and subtitled "The Planned Deterioration of America's Landscape."

The book is markedly similar in tone, content and format to Marinite Halprin's excellent "Cities," recently published by Reinhold. Like Halprin, and like Secretary Udall in his "The Quiet Crisis," Blake decries the devaluation of things esthetic in favor of material and economic considerations.

His bill of complaints includes the absence of real and effective planning, the penalizing of builders and designers for really fresh architectural concepts, the billboard clutter along our roadways and the TV antenna and utility pole clutter in our skyways, the encouragement of metropolitan ghettos, the subordination of the human individual to the motor car to the complete neglect of the pedestrian, the frantic search for novelty for the sake of novelty, and, paradoxically, the gray monotony of so many of our tract-dominated suburbs.

Whereas Halprin was concerned primarily with our cities and their suburbs, Blake ranges over a wider terrain covering the countryside and townsites as well. Like Halprin, he makes extensive use of photographs graphically illustrating his points. But the Blake book leans somewhat more heavily upon its text, somewhat less upon its pictures than did the Halprin book. And while excellent, the photos selected by Blake are somewhat more extreme and more obvious—and therefore, somewhat less effective than those collected by Halprin.

Perhaps their impact was diluted somewhat by the fact that our review copy was the cheaper paperback edition of the book.

Whatever its packaging, "God's Own Junkyard" is yet another impressive and urgent warning to the American public of the "uglification" we are permitting to take place around us. It is thanks to farsighted men like Blake and Halprin that we seem to be developing a growing awareness of this trend, and that there is a stirring of the forces which would reverse it before it is too late.

RATHER surprisingly, "Redwoods, Iron Horses and the Pacific," subtitled "The Story of the California Western Skunk Railroad," comes from a Southern California publishing firm, Trans-Anglo Books of Long Beach. The author, Spencer Crump, however, had his origin in Northern California, although he migrated south, where he has been a newspaperman and a teacher.

His book tells the story of everyone's favorite railroad, the California Western Railroad running from Fort Bragg through redwoods and mountains that astonish and delight the eyes. It began as a logging line and gained its greatest fame with the coming of the rail bus known as "The Skunk," which has since won the affection of thousands and thousands of train buffs, tourists and seekers of something different.

Crump has written an excellent and lively 35,000-word text, making use of the records and files of the California Western Railroad, and adding much original research of his own. This has been supplemented by some 150 illustrations, both vintage and recent. Most of the historical prints are from the railroad's own collection, and they constitute a fascinating journey into the past.

The back of the book contains a wealth of addendum material including a roster with thumbnail "biographies" of California Western locomotives and "Skunks," and the text of the announcement by the Edwards Railway Motor Car Co. of Sanford, N.C., of the specifications for its new self-propelled railway car that was to become the "Skunk."

Crump's book has appeal that goes well beyond the ranks of rail fans.

THE MUIR Woods Natural History Assn., established last year to disseminate information about the national park system in general and Muir Woods National Monument in particular, is off to an excellent start with the publication of "Flowers and Ferns of Muir Woods."

The booklet was prepared by the association in cooperation with the National Park Service and the California Academy of Science. Text is by botanist Gladys L. Smith, drawings by illustrator Jeanne Janish, who in recent years has come to specialize in this very field. In addition, there are a limited number of color photographs of Muir Woods flowers supplied by the Richfield Oil Corp.

The avowed purpose of the book is to provide visitors to Muir Woods with a handy guide which will enable them to recognize the key understory plants found there without resorting to bulky, technical manuals. Thanks to the expert work of both Mrs. Janish and Mrs. Smith, that purpose appears to have been fully achieved. A total of 72 plants, 60 of which are flowering, are represented.

An introduction provides a brief general description of the national monument as a natural botanical garden.

The booklet is available at the monument and from the California Academy of Science. Arthur A. Volz of Mill Valley is the executive secretary of the Muir Woods Natural History Assn., an organization deserving of the support of all conservation-minded Marinites.

Shadowy Figure

CASPAR HAUSER by Jacob Wassermann, translated by Caroline Newton, Liveright, 467 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

In "Billy Budd," Herman Melville compares Billy's innocence with that of Caspar Hauser — casually assuming that the reader is fully acquainted with his history. This is a valid assumption, because the enigma of Caspar Hauser puzzled all of Europe from the year 1828, when he first gained public attention, until 1833, when he met his death mysteriously.

Hauser first appeared in Nuremberg at about the age of 17. He was unable to walk, and was unkempt and illiterate.

With the few words which he knew, he told of the only life he could recall—a small dark room and a man who provided him with bread and water. Investigation of his story produced only controversial findings. Some claimed he was an imposter. Others claimed that he was the crown prince of Baden.

Wassermann tells us in his introduction to the English edition just where his sympathies lie and goes on to berate the critics of his previously published German edition for not recognizing in Hauser the symbol — the human being, pure, undefiled, unsophisticated, as Adam was before the fall—that Wassermann intended to portray.

When this book was first published in 1928 it received rave reviews, as did many of Wassermann's novels. He was extermely popular in his time, but his influence died almost before he did.

It's difficult to know how much has been lost in the translation, but this work seems flat. It fails in its symbolism and fits only into the category of a literary curiosity.

Southpaw Definitions

THE LEFT-HANDED DICTIONARY by Leonard Louis Levinson, Collier Books, paperback, 255 pages, 95 cents. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Gags, biting satire and philosophical observations are lumped together in Levinson's collection of definitions that range from astute comment to sickly puns.

Best taken in small doses (about one letter of the alphabet each day) the dictionary succeeds in bringing a smile to the reader, or at least a knowing nod.

Quotes from Oliver Wendell Holmes are mingled with gossip column sayings of Arthur Murray, or more likely his press agent, indicating the scope of Levinson's research.

In all, a "hopped-up" dictionary for those who would not dream of sitting down to Webster's or the Oxford Dictionary of Quotations.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE INVISIBLE EVIL by Robbert Gaines, Walker and Co., 224 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

An assassination plot against the prime minister of Great Britain has been honed into a two-edged yarn: A mixture of politics and suspense.

Gaines strikes a neat balance, giving the politically-inclined reader a backstage glimpse of the struggle for power and the suspense fan a nail-biting race against time.

At the core of the trouble is the political division of Ireland. Unfortunately, this creates a bit of a muddle for the American reader who is not close to machinations in the British Isles.

Characterization is strong throughout, but Gaines confuses the reader in his early chapters by introducing too many characters in rapid order.

The character who emerges as a likely candidate for future novels is Chief-Inspector Seaton, a man with a proper sense of justice.

On The Stereo Scene

By GARVEN HUDGINS

The Four Brahms symphonies have been brilliantly recorded by Ernest Ansermet and L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande in a new issue by London FFRR.

The stereo reproduction is excellent and occasional background sounds from the orchestra—slight instrument noises natural at the conclusion of a movement, for example—serve to enhance a concert-hall atmosphere.

The album also includes Ansermet's readings of the "Tragic and Academic Festiva Overtures" and of Brahms' "Variations on a Theme by Haydn."

The veteran conductor achieves a clarity in his interpretations of these classical favorites as well as in the four symphonies.

The pace is never too slow, with the result that the music flows in the regular, majestic rhythm intended by the master.

Of the symphonies, the recording of the Fourth is perhaps the most impressive. Ansermet extracts the maximum grandeur from this most complicated orchestral work and the grand passacaglia in the first movement proceeds without unnecessary flourishes.

JOHN F. KENNEDY
More memorial albums

In the popular Second Symphony, the orchestra achieves again the clarity that distinguishes these new recordings of Brahms. And, in the monumental First, Ansermet effectively blends the melodic and majestic passages for a thoroughly moving interpretation.

Technically, this new London FFRR release is far ahead of earlier recordings featuring the late Bruno Walter, in which the strings never seemed to overcome a tendency to thinness.

Other memorial albums include Premier's "John F. Kennedy Memorial Album," a memorial program that was broadcast by New York radio station WMCA plus excerpts of some of Kennedy's speeches.

"John F. Kennedy, the Presidential Years," 20th Century Fox, with the voice of the late President on some 20 different occasions, not all of them formal speeches.

Luigi Vena, Boston tenor who sang "Ave Maria" at both Kennedy's wedding and funeral, plans to record that song and others for an LP on the Veritas label.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

CHIEF KIRBY'S HOME

It's a shack, they said, it must come down—
But there was more than the eye could see . . .
For the dwelling was a cottage small—
A warmth in the heart of me.

I no longer see the clothesline ballet,
With pajamas leaping high in a breeze . . .
No pantomime strangers gesture and pause,
To the dirge of wafting leaves.

One day a senseless monster came,
With groping jaws of steel . . .
Who bashed and crushed the fading walls,
Destroying nail and keel.

It chewed and spat old lumber
Into an accomplice truck,
Then it roared and stumbled back again,
Grinning wildly as it struck.

Gone is the puff of chimney smoke—
Steamed windows glow no more . . .
But my memories are as vivid
As the path worn to my door.

The now-green slope lies bare of house—
Yet all things leave their trace,
And when unscathed bulbs spring daffodils,
I'll see his smiling face!

ON PILLS

What if they invented a new shiny pill
That forever would banish all hate,
All negative thoughts, all critical words,
All anger would disintegrate.
With nothing to march against, nothing to fight,
Life would be happy and loving and bright.
There'd be no excuse of a race or a color,
We'd all understand and love one another.
If people were asked to take this new pill,
How many you think would answer, "I will."

Built-Ins Increase Storage

When two children must share an average-size bedroom, some space juggling is involved. Here's where smart parents take a look at built-ins.

Built-in storage units have several advantages.

GENERALLY, they offer more actual storage space because a built-in can be tailored to make use of otherwise wasted inches in corners, under windows and high on walls. Drawer and cabinet units also can be designed to exceed standard dimensions to give more depth or length where needed for contents.

Another advantage is that built-ins give the small bedroom architectural quality by coordinating lines and dimensions. Frequently a corresponding number of furniture pieces will create a cluttered or overcrowded look, while the built-ins produce a spacious appearance because they are actually part of the room.

High quality lumber such as Douglas fir also adds to the appearance factor of built-ins and provides the durability needed for children's rooms.

FOR LOW upkeep, Douglas fir storage units should be finished with clear matte lacquer or varnish which doesn't show soil or fingerprints. Painted surfaces are also popular, however, and are often used to highlight a color scheme.

Studio couches are another space saving device for children's rooms. They look less massive than beds and have the added advantage of being set against walls so that space in the center of the room is left free. A room for two youngsters can be handsomely arranged with a pair of studio couches set at right angles to each other, sharing a corner table as combination headboard and nightstand.

The corner table can also be designed to provide storage for extra bed linens and pillows.

THE OTHER two walls of the room can then be designed with built-ins for clothing, books, and study space.

A good place for clothing drawers is right under the window, and this unit, if low, can also work as a window seat. Corners will take floor-to-ceiling shelf units and one corner installation can include a desk, perhaps wall hung.

Minimum closets can also undergo a little remodeling to increase useability. Often just rearranging the hanging rods will double space.

WITH PROPER PLANNING, even a small room can give a child—or children—adequate space for study, play and sleep. This arrangement puts studio couches against two walls, bookshelves in a corner and wardrobe drawers under a window seat. Study desk, additional drawers and open shelves are hung on fourth wall, adjacent to closet. Easily-worked Douglas fir lumber has been tailored to make use of every inch available. Use It Right Or Not At All

A do-it-yourself theme we have been trying to pound home for years is that a large percentage of paint failures by amateurs is due to the failure to follow the manufacturer's instructions.

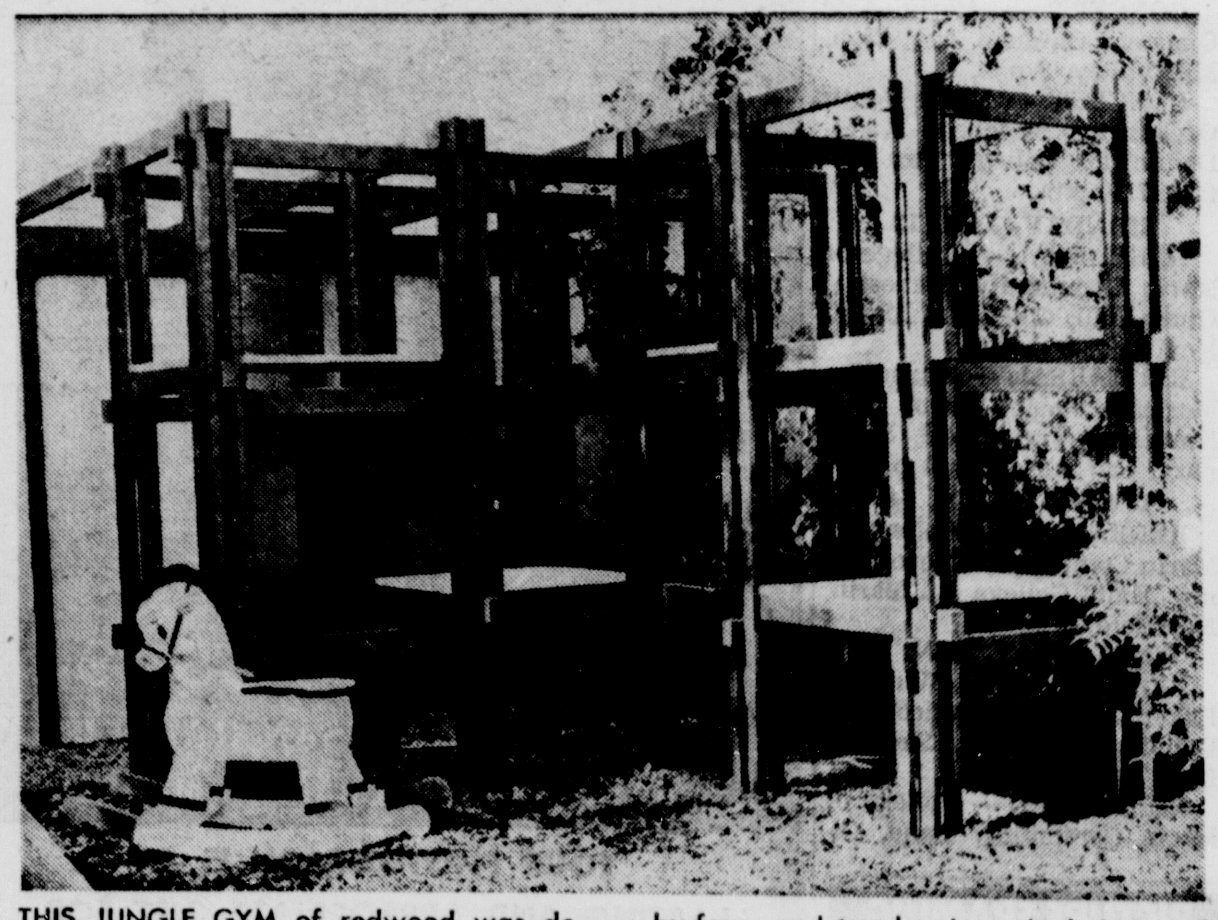

We got a special kick, therefore, out of the warning we saw the other day on the can lid of an acrylic latex exterior house paint. This is a comparatively new type of exterior paint that seems to have solved a considerable percentage of the blistering problems that have beset the paint industry for many years. However, the majority of manufacturers recommended it only for application on bare wood and always in conjunction with a special primer.

The manufacturer of this particular brand apparently has had some experience with the consumer who disregards instructions. Right on the can lid is this statement:

"Use this unusual paint as directed or please don't use it."

This is what we have been saying all along. The newer and more specialized the paint, the more important it is that the label recommendations be followed. And if you don't think there has been a technological revolution within this old established industry, here's a statistic that may surprise you.

Ninety per cent of paint formulas used today did not exist in their present form five years age.

THIS JUNGLE GYM of redwood was designed by Nichols, Niem and Associates, landscape architects, and can be adapted easily for construction in the home workshop. The play structure is made of two-by-fours and two-by-sixes. And since redwood (all-heart grade) is decay-resistant, the uprights can be driven directly into the ground, placed on concrete or plunged into a pit of redwood bark or sand. Plan Your Shade Now

Gardening Page

There are many reputable landscape architects who believe that every yard must have a tree—indeed, that the landscape revolves around a tree. Usually a tree grown to provide shade.

Whether this view is yours or not, certainly there is nothing more welcome come summer than the sheltering arms of a shade tree that makes your patio an outdoor living room.

WHY, IN the heart of winter, should you think of shade?

There are several sound reasons, not the least of which is that this is the ideal time to plant shade trees. Equally valid is the notion a shade tree should be handsome the year around — naked as well as clothed—and there is nothing that shows a tree's beauties and defects quite as starkly as winter chill when the leaves are gone and the tree's frame stands open to view.

There are many excellent possibilities, but here are a few that should be considered before making your selection. The need to visit a nursery is emphasizd by the need for a choice—your tree will be expected to live and serve you a lifetime—and the nurseryman is trained to advise you on which is the best selection for your particular neighborhood.

IF YOU have room for a deciduous tree that will grow up to 50 feet and have a 25-foot spread, then look for a Tulip Tree.

This round-headed tree has naturally strong limbs, usually well placed so that there is little you have to do to see it fulfill its mission. The foliage is light green with interesting saddle-shaped, notched leaves that turn a good, clear yellow before they drop in winter.

The tulip-shaped flowers (hence the common name) come during the summer and are quite beautiful, with orange markings on the greenish-yellow blossoms, but they are tucked among the foliage. The blossoms can be cut and used in flower arrangements—usually they are at their best when floating in a bowl of water—but are not particularly long-lasting.

AN ENTIRELY different style of tree but equally useful and of about the same height (50 to 60 feet tall, but with less spread) is the Maidenhair Tree.

The Maidenhair gets its name from the delicate, light green leaves shaped like miniature fans and deeply notched in the center. These change to a golden yellow before they drop in the fall. The branches, unlike those of the Tulip Tree, are slender and the form is pyramidal to conical.

You will have to prune this one up to make it a shade tree, but this is not much of a task and is well worth the effort.

THE MAIDENHAIR was not always in good standing. There was a time when the female produced silvery, plum-like fruits that dropped. Fortunately we now have a non-fruiting variety and now the Maidenhair is produced as grafted stock to insure no problems. The result is a wonderful shade tree.

Your nurseryman will even have an improved variety called Autumn Gold that has deeper yellow foliage that holds on longer in the year. In fact, the Maidenhair is so improved it is useful to us under such varied conditions as in a tub (where it can be held to eight feet), street tree, specimen tree—or for shade.

One of the most widely used shade trees in California is the Ash, a deciduous beauty that grows rather rapidly to about 30 feet and spreads its welcome shade about 20 feet.

IT HAS A somewhat pyramidal habit while young but as it matures it makes an open, round-headed tree with no drawbacks. The bark is gray tinged with red and deeply furrowed, but one of the most interesting things about the tree is the "fruit." On the female trees, long, drooping clusters of light brown, winged seeds appear during the summer and persist until fall. They can be useful in flower arrangements, and do not drop until the leaves also fall, so the Ash is really a clean tree.

The Ash will take nearly any soil conditions you have as long as other garden plants can grow there, and it doesn't seem to mind the weather.

Your nurseryman may recommend the Modesto Ash, a selection of the normal Ash, that has smoother leaves and an excellent form.

IF YOU HAVE a yen for a tree that provides ample shade, grows neither too fast nor too slowly and has attractive bluish-green foliage and showy yellow-orange flowers in the spring, direct your attention to the Tulip Tree pictured here. It's now ready for planting in the bareroot state. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

The Grape—A Plant That Is Useful And Ornamental

In this day of the ornamental, when beauty has at last won a respected place in our thoughts, it is wise not to forget that there are plants that combine usefulness with beauty.

The grape is one of these. Here we can have our fruit fresh from the vine, and eat it beneath the very vine as well. What is so delightful as dining in the shade of a pergola on a warm fall evening with the heady perfume of the grape clusters, the handsome foliage and the fascinating, tortured limbs of the grape vines twined around the supports?

OR WHAT IS more handsome than a wall alive with the fall ochres and scarlets and greens of grape leaves, or the rich colors of the clusters themselves promising delightful, refreshing eating-out-of-hand?

If you have listened to some amateur grower of wine grapes (or even some of the professionals), you may have decided that the hardest thing in the world to grow was a good grape!

Nonsense. Not every table variety will succeed everywhere, but several different varieties will succeed almost anywhere and your nurseryman will know which are the best in our area.

Grapes—and unless you're going to make a hobby of grape-growing you'd better forget the wine grapes and grow those that will grace your table—are quite undemanding.

ANY SOIL where the water doesn't stand around (is well drained, in other words) usually will do. Naturally you're not going to be able to grow one in a salt lick but you're not going to grow anything else there either. They appreciate and respond to an annual helping of manure and complete fertilizer worked into the soil in spring as new growth begins to show.

The grape can take quite a bit of abuse but there's no use abusing it unnecessarily. Therefore, water about every three weeks during the growing season and water heavily. Soak the ground. If the weather turns remarkably hot for a spell, give it another deep soaking. But don't soak grapes every few days.

Incidentally, if you want to insure the most colorful winter foliage, withhold water from about August on. The leaves will color up beautifully.

GRAPES DO need sun and heat. Now if you were out in the desert where the summer is scorching, your problems would be slight in that direction. But be sure to consult your nurseryman for correct varieties for Marin's milder temperatures where lack of heat is an important consideration.

No matter what variety you grow — the delicious, white, Thompson Seedless; the spectacular Lady Finger with large, elongated pale green berries; the old but still excellent Concords; the reddish purple Emperor — pruning is most important.

Don't be alarmed. There is nothing difficult about pruning grapes, it's simply that you should make sure when you buy a variety whether it needs to be "cane" pruned or "spur" pruned.

THE THOMPSON Seedless, for example, should be "cane" pruned. That simply means you should let at least two strong canes grow up (the others can be removed) and spread out like arms or espaliered or put on a pergola. Then the shoots that come off these canes are pruned back in the fall to stubs with two buds on them. The rest is cut away.

Many of our table grape varieties can be "spur" pruned. That means you can cut all the canes back to two buds, just leaving a nice big stump and the stubs with two buds each on them.

However, any of the grapes that will take "spur" pruning can also take the "cane" pruning system or be trained in any way your fancy desires. But those that should be "cane" pruned shouldn't be given the more severe "spur" treatment.

THIS IS the best time to buy and plant your grapes. Your nurseryman will sell you grafted plants that will produce fruit the first year.

Your greatest concern should be to decide where you want your grape vine and in what form you want it to grow. An excellent treatment, of course, is to plant a tall, two-by-two (or larger) redwood stake and put your vine or vines at its base. You train the main shoot or "trunk" up to the desired height — say seven or eight feet—then by proper pruning shape the "head" to form an umbrella.

The effect is wonderfully ornamental—and the grapes can drop into your mouth, almost.

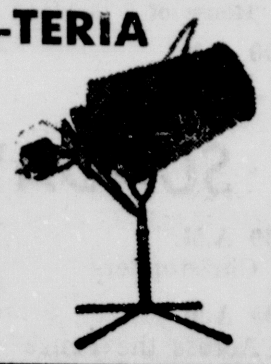

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

- This is bareroot planting season when your dormant plants are least expensive. Don't forget to cut off the scuffed or broken root ends when you plant.
- Plant grapes, berries and fruit trees now. Soak the plants in well, then let the rains take over.
- You can still set out bulbs. Tulips, hyacinths, daffodils are the big ones. Get them planted without further delay for good spring bloom.
- This is the important time for dormant spraying of fruit trees. Ask your nurseryman what to use—and if you don't know for sure, ask him the best way to apply it.

"TOMORROW WAS YESTERDAY" is the title of the "Chronicle" program to be hosted Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. on KPIX-TV by Charles Collingwood. The documentary will report on five major scientific breakthroughs that have been achieved in the past 15 years. Collingwood is seen above with a model of a radio telescope, one of the areas to be explored.

IT TAKES SPECIAL technique and equipment to photograph under the sea. A documentary in the "Bell System Science Series" entitled "The Restless Sea" will tell how it is done — and show some of the spectacular results — next Friday at 7:30 p.m. on KRON-TV.

ZOOLOGIST Marlin Perkins is the host of the popular Sunday afternoon show, "Wild Kingdom," which introduces viewers to the habits and habitats of our furred and feathered friends. KRON-TV carries the program.

PUSHING, SQUEEZING AND SHOVING DIDN'T HELP!

We had more merchandise in our annex than buyers. So we have further reduced our prices on the remaining inventory in order to vacate our warehouse for the new tenant. We have also re-priced lower many one-of-a-kind items in our main building.

THE SAVINGS ARE FABULOUS—DRIVE OUT AND FIND OUT

Due to the nature of this Sale, we will not be able to hold any merchandise for future delivery. All goods advertised subject to prior sale. No Exchanges, Refunds, Cancellations.
